

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

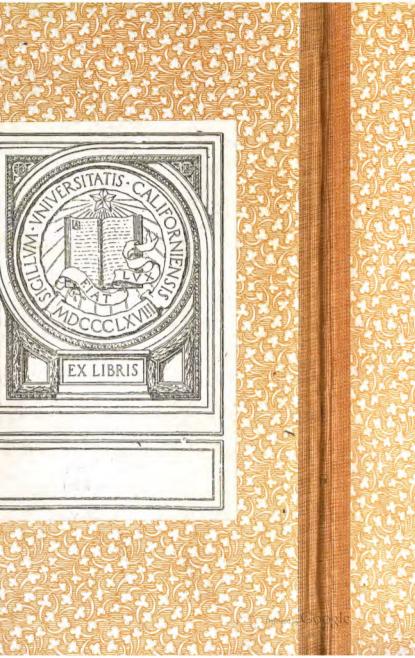

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

BENJAMIN HALL KENNEDY D.D.

REGIUS PROFESSOR OF GREEK.

MY DEAR DR KENNEDY,

Once more, after the lapse of a quarter of a century, I render the account, which you have the best right to demand, of my studies on the last great writer of heathen Rome.

You, who even 'between whiles' surprise the world with finished pieces and dream on Parnassus, may find much to censure in the form of my commentary. I shall be content, if only in the matter of it there appears that

If you see here a just advance on the first-fruits of my pen, I shall feel more at home in the Sparta founded in your honour and adorned by the genius of the editor of Lucretius.

I am,

My dear Dr Kennedy,

Ever gratefully yours,

JOHN E. B. MAYOR.

THE notes on sat. X were written, and nearly all stereotyped, in the summer of 1871; those on great part of sat. VIII in 1872, the remainder to the end of sat. XIII in 1877; the last three satires have been added in the last two months.

I give these details, partly to explain any apparent neglect of materials lately brought to light, and partly as an example of the use of our long vacation. Many of us are unable during term to engage in any work requiring prolonged attention. Even in Bentley's time, Cambridge could only make hay when the sun shone.

I have to thank several friends for help. Mr Munro supplies many notes (marked H. A. J. M.) and some emendations. I have also profited by communications from the late Professor Conington (J. C.), the Rev. H. R. Bailey (H. R. B.), the Public Orator (J. E. S.), and my brother (J. B. M.)². I have, as will be seen, examined the manuscript notes of Stanley, Hadr. Beverland, John Taylor³, Markland⁴, Böttiger and John Mitford⁵. From the friends of Otto Jahn I learn that his commentary was only completed for a few satires, and that he intended to re-write the whole. In general he trusted to memory, but for Juvenal and Persius had formed collectanea. It is much to be hoped that his labours will be given to the world, for few scholars have ever lived so well furnished with the historical and antiquarian learning required in an editor of Juvenal: his library was perhaps the best working collection that the world has seen in its department.

I give elsewhere (bibliographical clue to Latin literature Cambr. 1875 96-97) a list of the principal commentators and dissertations. Prof. Bernays¹, I am glad to see, does justice to the few notes of N. Rigault. Is. de la Grange (Grangaeus) is a commentator akin to Cerda or Passerat, widely read especially in the poets. France also contributes the notes of Adr. and Charles de Valois (published by Achaintre). The essays of Martha, Boissier, Widal, Nisard, are all more or less worth reading.

Italy supplies the commentary of Silvestri de Rovigo, the life of Juvenal and occasional notes by Borghesi; Denmark the two dissertations of Madvig and a treatise on the poet's style by Kiaer.

Critical readers of my book will possess Otto Jahn's two editions (the larger with the scholia and full critical apparatus Berl. 1851; the smaller with Persius and Sulpicia and select critical notes in Weidmann's series Berl. 1868). A few tracts by Friedländer, who is employed on an edition of Martial, are of value; but his Sittenge-schichte almost supplies the place of a commentary both to Martial and Juvenal; the same may be said of Marquardt's Alterthümer and (in an inferior degree) of Forbiger's Hellas und Rom (left unfinished by his death at a great age a few months ago).

I have on all the satires collections on the same scale as the fullest here printed and hope to publish as a basis for a commentary on satires II. VI. IX. the substance of ms. notes by the scholars named above and by others (e.g. Casaubon). In course of time, when I have cleared off other arrears, I propose to prepare a critical text founded on a new collation of P (cod. Pithoeanus or Budensis saec. IX, once in the library of Matthias Corvinus, now in the bibliothèque de l'école de médecine at Montpellier n. 125) with the early mss. in this country.

A bibliographical catalogue, with biographical notices, of all English works, printed or manuscript, on Juvenal to the year 1850, a reprint of scattered translations to the end of the 17th century, and a dissertation on Roman satire and satirists¹, are tasks which I have in view, but cannot promise to undertake for several years. A smaller edition for schools, in three parts, will cost little labour, and may, I hope, be completed by the end of 1879.

¹ A learned divine (Keim Gesch. Jesu v. Nazara i 381) generously plumps up the meagre list: 'ein später römischer Satiriker des 4. Jahrh. Makrobius.' Oddly enough, in the next line the words 'aus Versehen' occur. The source of this 'Versehen' is all too obvious.

In my notes I have endeavoured at once to meet the wants of English students (in general little accustomed to consult original authorities and debarred from the best and latest books of reference) and also to supply new materials for the grammarian, lexicographer and historian1. Following the steps of Casaubon and Gataker. Scaliger and Hemsterhuis, I have drawn materials from writers, accessible to me, of every race and creed. I see only a riddle in the taste, which, allowing Libanius, lays Chrysostom under ban; scouring the world for an inscription, while blind to a vast literature ready to hand. Were Philo a pagan, his historical tracts would assuredly rank as priceless evidence respecting the early empire. Even lexicography has suffered by the stigma cast on men, who had served many philosophies before they bowed their necks beneath the cross; for it might then be said, fiunt, non nascuntur Christiani.

I have purposely abstained from consulting any English edition of Juvenal.

ST John's, Sept. 9, 1878.

1 I know not why Mr A. Palmer (Hermathena i 391) should suppose that Ov. m. viii 283 had 'escaped my notice'. It is printed at length, in both editions, in the note on iv 27, and this note is cited on v 147, the verse which Mr Palmer is discussing; see too Dobree advers. II 387. The other quotation should be not 'met. x. 38. v. 1' but v 381, which, with this correction, I gratefully accept. If Mr Palmer will consult the ind. under sed, he will see other authorities. He does not observe that Ribbeck corrupts both lines by the same cheap nostrum, nec for sed (iv 27 nec maioris se). Bergk's warning (speaking of the Teubner Gellius Jahrbb. CXIII 1876 276) is certainly opportune: 'wenn dies so fort geht, so wird, ehe nochmals dreissig jahre verflossen sind, jeder mann von bildung und geschmack sich mit widerwillen von den in Deutschland erschienen neuen ausgaben lateinischer schriftsteller abwenden.'

DECIMUS IUNIUS IUVENALIS

15 To this day the praenomen of Iuv. is often mistaken. Drakenborch1 ('in autores latinos praelectiones publicae, inchoatae Sept. 20 1725' ms. penes me p. 574) 'errant...l'etrus Crinitus l. 4 de poët. lat. et alii, qui Decium vocant hunc poëtam, ut ostendit Lud. Carrio l. 1 emendat. c. 1. Decimus 20 enim erat huius scriptoris praenomen; nam Decius numquam fuit praenomen Romanum.' So Ausonius and Decimus Brutus and many others (see Hofmann's lexicon under Decius) have been falsely named. Holyday (pp. 9 10) notes that the mistake was in Lily's grammar, and that D. in Polyb. DS. DH. 25 DCass. is always represented by Δέκιμος. Cf. Quintus, Sextus and the christian name of Vicesimus Knox.

IUVENALIS ETHICUS

C. Barth advers. VI 1 fin. Iuvenalis...ex materia quam tractat, satirico sale vitia, plerumque magnatum, insectans, ETHICUS dictus est. id. on Namatian. I 604 IUVENALIS sane eruditissimus scriptor, elegantissimus poëta et censor morum liberrimus et acutissimus. summo pretio antiquitati habitus. a quo nasutuli nostri temporis adeo futiliter dissentiunt, ut etiam latinitatem hominis tam praeclare docti et ingeniosi vituperare audeant. de quo latius nos alibi disserere non vetabit illorum de se ipsis opinio, quae ut praecipites in aliorum contemptum eos agit, ita domesticos naevos prorsus perpendere non patitur. nuditatem sermonis et vitiorum velut exinde disciplinam carpunt viri doctissimi. at talia describenda sunt, ut evitari eo melius possint, sententia Dionis Chrysostomi, cuius lege orationem 31, quae Rhodiaca inscribitur. aestimatio autem Iuvenalis etiam ad extrema tempora duravit. media enim barbaria per excellentiam ETHICI titulo citatur, summis philosophis comparatus, ut a Ioanne Sarisberiensi, Alano et eius generis non paucis philologis eorum temporum.

This statement has been repeated by Fabricius, Ruperti, Achaintre, Francke, Weber, Corn. Müller, Bernhardy and many others. Having seen reason, since my first edition, to doubt whether Iuv. was in any exclusive sense known as ethicus, I have looked through the works of John of Salisbury and Peter of Blois, who constantly cite him. As regards Alanus de Insulis Barth's wonderful memory has deceived him. On turning over the 1012 columns of his works, I find only the following scraps of Iuv., who is named but once, and never called ethicus.

ib. • under Subsellia he cites Iuv. by name and VII 86 fregit subsellia versu. I may notice that Alanus often cites Seneca, some additions to whose fragments he may perhaps supply. Vincent of Beauvais in volumes I (naturale) and II (doctrinale) of his speculum constantly cites Iuv. by name and book (e.g. I vi 21 fin. xix 28. xxxi 84. 86. 115. II iv 7. 13), but I nowhere observe the title ethicus.

John of Salisbury and Peter of Blois by no means confine the title to our poet. Io. Sarisb. pol. Iuv. is quoted by Alcuin, by Rather bp. of Verona (saec. x), by Everhardus Bethuniensis cir. 1212 (Lyser poëtae lat. medii aevi p. 825). I do not remember that the abbat Lupus cites or names him. cf. DATES OF JUVENAL'S LIFE

L. FRIEDLAENDER de Iuvenalis vitae temporibus Königsberg 1875 4to. XIII 17 written 60 or 61 years after Fonteius cos. A.D. 67, i.e. in 127 or 128. In verses 13 (tu) and 33 (senior bulla dignissime) and throughout the satire Calvinus is addressed in the second person, hence stupet haec, qui iam post terga reliquit sexaginta annos, Fonteio consule natus, must refer to the poet, not to Calvinus. 'se stupere dicit, quod amicus casum tam aegre ferat, quem ipse in sexaginta annis saepissime viderit. se igitur poeta Fonteio consule natum verbis disertis dicit,' vita cod. Voss 'Iuvenalis...ex Aquinio Volscorum oppido oriundus temporibus Claudii Neronis.'

In all the lives, except IV and VII, he is said to have declaimed 'usque ad mediam aetatem': if he died (vita cod. Voss) shortly after his 80th year, or (vita III) 'anno aetatis suae altero et octuagesimo' 'il mezzo del cammin' of his life would be aet. 40 or 41. Whether 'middle age' had any precise meaning Friedländer cannot determine from the only authorities in which he has found it Phaedr. II 2 3 aetatis mediae quendam, with the old and young wife. Plaut. aul. 157 sed grandior es: mulieris est aetas media. In Censorin. 14 § 10 Staseas fixes as the limit of life $7 \times 12 = 84$.

Taking 40 as 'middle age', the first book of satires will have been written 107—116, nearer to 116.

Sat. VI 407 instantem regi Armenio Parthoque cometen a comet seen at Rome Nov. 115. ib. 411 nutare urbes, subsidere terras earthquake at Antioch 13 Dec. 115 (Friedländer Königsb. progr. v for 1872 and Gutschmid cited there). Sat. VI then (or book II) will have been written A.D. 116 or 117.

The emperor Hadrian, welcomed in sat. VII, came to Rome A.D. 118 (went to the provinces 119 120).

Book IV written between 120 and 127 A.D., for XV 27 nuper consule Iunco shews that book V was written after 127. Friedländer gives to Aemilius Iuncus two nomina gentilicia, Claudius and Aemilius.

pigar-koasy lla/C/C/C/C/C

Books I—III written in Rome. IV V possibly in exile, vita cod. Kulenkamp 'in exilio ampliavit satiras et pleraque mutavit.' Fr. Rühl¹ ('zu den vitae Iuvenalis' in Jahrbb. CIX 1874 868—9, who tells us that the Iuv. mss. of the Brit. Mus. 'bieten sämtlich den gewöhnlichen, nicht Pithöanischen Text und sind daher vorläufig ohne besonderes Interesse') gives from cod. Harl. 3301 saec. XV exeuntis a life which also states that the satires were written in exile.

Martial shews that Iuv. was in Rome A.D. 92 and again 101—2 (Friedländer Sittengesch. III 372—390 'Chronologie der Epigramme Martials'). Paris the actor was put to death A.D. 83 act. Iuv. 16. All the authorities agree that Iuv. was 'irati histrionis exul' but the name Paris, given in the lives, seems to be taken at hap-hazard from sat. VII 87. Crispinus, colleague of Fuscus as praef. pract. under Domitian (ind. 'Crispinus') may have stationed Iuv. in Egypt; he may have been exiled after 92 and returned before 101—2.

The dates then, as given by Friedländer, are: birth 67 A.D. at Rome 92 and 101—2. declaimed to 107. bk. I 107—116. II 116—118. III 118—119—20. IV 120—127. v after 127. death 147.

TITULUS AQUINI REPERTUS (p. xiv)

'Ab altera parte legitur decretum Aquinatium de tabula patronatus et statua constituendis IRN 4342.' Grotefend (Philologus XII 489—490). Mommsen supplies the word TRIBUNUS. If in the old life of Iuv. we read missus ad praefecturam cohortis and in the life ex cod. Omnibonian. in Achaintre (cf. K. Fr. Hermann in ind. schol. Gott. summerterm 1843 p. 9) Traianus...fecit èum praefectum militum contra Scotos, if in the inscription we see him as officer of a

coh. Delmatarum, and learn from the diploma of Trajan in Cardinali tav. XII, and from that of Hadrian (Orelli-Henzen 5455), that the coh, I Delmatarum (without the addition milliaria) was then in Britain, and consider that the inscriptions of the raefectus coh. I Delmat. (Orelli 2716-7) were found in Cumberland, we cannot refrain from claiming for Iuv. also the title of a praefectus cohortis, and think we discover the sting of Trajan's words et te Philomela promovit [vita v Jahn] chiefly in this, that by virtue of them the poet received by the Philomela only the lower grade of praefectus, whereas (VII 92 praefectos Pelopea facit, Philomela tribunos) he had ascribed to the Philomela the promotion to the tribunate. Anyhow Mommsen's inscription, in addition to what I have here cited, adds greatly to the weight of the report of Juvenal's exile in Scotland. Grotefend shews that tribuni are commanders of cohortes milliariae, praefecti of ordinary cohorts. The coh. I milliaria Delmatarum (Or. 1833. Murat. 455 1) has a tribune, the ordinary coh. 1 Delmatarum (Or. 2153. 2716-7. 4082. 4132. Murat. 812 8) has a praefectus. The inscription will run then: (Cere)ri sacrum (D. Iu)nius Iuvenalis (praefectus?) coh(ortis I) Delmatarum, 11(vir) quinq(uennalis), flamen divi Vespasiani, vovit dedicav(itq)ue sua pecunia.

VILTUE is the only true nobility: if you are just in word and deed, by these features I recognise you (agnosco 26) as a noble: otherwise your illustrious name may but be applied in mockery, as we call a dwarf an Atlas (1-38). Rubellius may boast of his ancestor Iulus: but if he sits still as a stock, while plebeians are actively serving their country in the law-court or the camp, he must look to be condemned like the lagging horse in the circus, whom no pedigree can save from the mill or the cart (39-70). Would you know how to live as befits your descent? Be a brave soldier, a just judge, an honest governor, as well in unwarlike Corinth as in rude Gaul or Spain. So will high birth be indeed an honour to you; whereas it only brings out in more glaring colours the crimes of the oppressor or debauchee (71-So is it with Lateranus, who, though a consular, lives the life of a vulgar sot: a slave, who should do the same, would be sent to work in chains in the country (146-182). Other nobles, still more completely lost to shame, appear on the stage. Be it so, that they are well paid: what of that? No plea, but that of necessity, can palliate the offence. Nor indeed can that: better were it to die, than to act with Thymele or Corinthus (183-197). Beyond this there is but one lower stage of infamy,—the arena: and even there you may see a Gracchus, and see him too, as though determined to publish abroad his shame, choose those arms which least of all hide the wearer's features. No wonder that the very gladiators are ashamed of so degenerate an antagonist (198-210). None can be of nobler birth than Nero, yet he exceeded the crime of Orestes, without the excuse of Orestes (211-230). The high-born Catiline would have laid the city waste with fire and sword, but for Cicero. a new man from a country town; justly then did this new man receive the title of Father of his country (231-244). Marius also and the Decii were plebeian: Servius Tullius was the son of a slave; and these Rome reckons among her chief benefactors (245-268). The sons of Brutus, the deliverer of Rome, would have betraved their country, had it not been for a slave (261-268). After all, this long pedigree of which you boast, ends at last in some peasant or robber (269-275).

FABIOS 14 n. DCass, LXI 17 speaking of Nero's time 'men and women [1 22 n.], not only of equestrian but also of senatorial rank went on to the stage and circus and amphitheatre, just like the lowest of the people; and some of them played the flute and danced. and acted in comedies and tragedies, and played on the lute, and drove horses, and slew wild beasts, and fought in single combat (inf. 199 seq.), some of choice, others sore against their will [cogente Nerone], and then people saw the great families, the Furii, the Fabii' etc. 192 MAMERCORUM a noble family of the Aemilia gens (supra 21): the whole gens traced its descent from Mamercus a son of Numa Plut, Num. 8. Aemil. 2. Paul. Disc. s.'v. Aemiliam. In the 5th cent. A.D. the Mamerci held many honours; one of the name e.g. was thrice dicta-ALAPAS v 171 n. Mart. v 61 11 12 o quam dignus eras alapis, Mariane, Latini/ | te successurum credo ego Panniculo. Cypr. de spect. 8 ictibus vulnerum infelix facies locatur, ut infelicior venter saginetur. QUANTI SUA FUNERA VENDANT etc. ["Madvig has well pointed out how confused and selfcontradictory the explanations of the older editors are: much that he says is manifestly true; but I am not at all satisfied with his own explanation of the most difficult point, quanti sua funera etc.: funera, as he takes it, even if Latin which I doubt, could not have been intelligible with the context to a Latin reader; and in my opinion his interpretation weakens, if it does not destroy, the point of the contrast between these words, and Finge tamen gladios cet. with which they were evidently intended to contrast. Juvenal here, as in other places, referring to an age long past, that of Nero, in his rhetorical way, as if it were present, and indeed mentally thinking of it as present, is necessarily obscure. In describing too this Res memoranda novis annalibus atque recenti Historia I believe he had Tacitus annal. xiv 14 etc. before him, and perhaps some other of the authorities of Dio quoted by you: 188 189 foll. seems almost to refer to Tacitus: mox ultro vocari populus Romanus laudibusque extollere, ut est vulgus cupiens voluptatum...nobilium familiarum posteros egestate venales in scenam deduxit cet. cannot understand why Madvig should deny that funera vendere for vitam vendere is Latin, the two ideas being interchangeable and the Latins often thus using mors. redimere aliquid vita and the like are common in Cicero: see Nizolius and Freund: but then Caesar bel. Gall. 1 44 12 says omnium gentium atque amicitiam eius morte redimere posset: Ovid ex Ponto m 1 105 Si mea mors redimenda tua...esset: i.e. si venderes tuam mortem ut meam redimeres. Well then Juvenal says 'At what price these creatures sell their deaths, what matter?' (I omit for the moment 193 vendunt-ludis). Sume tamen gladios cet. 'yet if the choice were given them "will you go on the stage or be killed?" I should have thought that none would have hesitated for a moment to choose death, rather than be zelotypus etc.:' thus you get a direct contrast between quanti s. f. v., and Sume TAMEN gladios etc. which is surely intended. Juvenal in his indignation does not choose to distinguish between their actual degradation and what he thinks they ought to feel: then 198 foll. Res haut mira cet. seems still a reminiscence of Tacitus: 1. c. 15 non nobilitas cuiquam (cith. princ. mimus Nobilis) non aetas aut acti honores impedimento quominus Graeci Latinive histrionis artem exercerent usque ad gestus modosque haud viriles ... and postremo ipse scenas incedit temptans citharam cet.: so that now nothing was left but the 'ludus.' Now to return to 194 Vendunt cet.: this must be as it were a parenthetical thought of Juvenal, as before and after he is talking of Nero's days: they seem meant to point the contrast between the quanti cet. and the tamen cet.: he knew from Tacitus l. c. 'notos quoque equites Romanos operas harenae promittere subegit donis ingentibus, nisi quod merces ab eo qui iubere potest vim necessitatis affert' (i.e. cogente Nerone); and he knew that in his own days it had become a fashion and a passion with nobles to enter the harena as gladiators or to fight with wild beasts. This parenthesis then has no reference to Nero's times of course, as what precedes and follows has: 'What matter then at what cost they sell their lives (or deaths): (we know from what we see going on at the present day that they do sell them readily enough, the 'no Nero compels, nay they unhesitatingly sell them at the games of the Praetor), I should have thought then that they would have chosen the gladii at once, when the choice was between death and dishonour of this kind.' Many trains of thought must have been running through Juvenal's mind at the same time." H. A. J. M. So Mr Conington wrote: 'I don't think anything of Madvig's objection that it should be vitas vendunt. Virgil uses indifferently vitam pro laude pacisci and letum pro laude pacisci.']

211—230 The people if free to choose would prefer the Spaniard Seneca to Nero the scion of Iulus, but yet a parricide worthy of many deaths. 'Orestes also slew his mother'; true, but at Apollo's behest, to avenge the treacherous murder of his father; and it was his single sin; he laid no finger on his sister or on Hermione, mixed no poison for his kinsfolk,—never sang on the stage, wrote no Trojan epic:

for what of all Nero's crimes called louder for the avenging sword of Verginius, of Vindex or of Galba? Behold the exploits, the accomplishments of your high-born emperor; it is his pride to sing on a foreign stage, to win the parsley-wreath in Greek concerts. Fix the trophies of his voice on the family statues, the flowing train of Thyestes or Antigone at the feet of Domitius, and hang up his guitar from a marble colossus. On Nero see especially Herm. 213 Nero deserved, not once alone (non una III 151, vi 218), but many times, to die the parricide's death. For he was privy to, and afterwards jested on, the murder of Claudius (v 148). Early in A.D. 55 he poisoned. by the help of Locusta (17172 n.), Britannicus, son of his step-father Claudius (Tac. XIII 15-18: Agrippina was alarmed because, ib. 17 parricidii exemplum intellegebat). Among his other victims were his father's sisters Domitia Lepida (A.D. 54, before the death of Claudius, ib. XII 64) and Domitia (shortly after the murder of Agrippina DCass. LXI 17. Suet. Ner. 34), his mother Agrippina (March A.D. 59 Tac. xxv 3-13. she had long looked forward to such an end, ib. 9 consulenti super Nerone responderunt Chaldaei, 'fore ut imperaret matremque occideret:' atque illa 'occidat' inquit 'dum imperet.' DCass. LXII 18 a Sibylline oracle was fulfilled in Nero, the last emperor of the Julian line, ἔσχατος Αίνεαδῶν μητροκτόνος ήγεμονεύσει. cf. Lxi 2 § 1 the crime foretold by an astrologer. The indignation of the people, amidst great outward rejoicings, still found some vent: e.g. a child was found exposed in the forum, and with it a tablet inscribed, DCass. ib. 16 'I rear thee not, lest thou shouldst kill thy mother.' Verses were posted about the city, such as Suet. 39 'quis negat Aeneae magna de stirpe Neronem! | sustulit hic matrem, sustulit ille patrem.' cf. Tac. xv 67. Namatian. 11 57-60), his wives, Octavia the daughter of Claudius (June A.D. 62 Tac. xiv 64. DCass. Lxii 13. Suet. 57), and Poppaea (Tac. xvi 6. DCass. 214 CULLEUS a skin (wine-skin dig. xxxm 63 § 1): a bag was hung round the neck of one of Nero's statues, with the inscription Suet. 46 ego quid potui? sed tu culleum meruisti. DCass. LXI 16. dig. So Apollonius in Philostr. iv 38 § 3 'you cannot say of wild beasts, that they ever feasted on their own mothers, but Nero has battened on this food. 242 THESSALIAE CAMPIS Merivale III¹ 214: 'Regarding the battle of Philippi [B. C. 42] a curious error was perpetuated among the Roman writers. They persisted in representing it as fought on the same spot as the battle of Pharsalia. The name of Macedonia was given by the Romans to the whole region between the Adriatic and the Hellespont, and such names as Aemathia, Haemonia, were applied very loosely by their poets. The mistake arose from an ambiguity in Virgil's lines, which became a locus classicus with succeeding writers g. VITEM XIV 193 n. Marquardt III (2) 282. 248 DOLABBA SEG Rich. Maccenas, in the speech put into his mouth by DCass. LII 25 88 6-7, warns Augustus to exclude those who have served έν τῷ τεταγμένω from the senate. τούτων μέν γάρ τών καὶ φορμοφορησάντων καὶ λαρκοφορησάντων και αισχρόν και έπονειδιστόν έστιν έν τῷ βουλευτικῷ τινας έξετάteσθαι. Plutarch Mar. 18 gives two explanations of a slang term 1) he trained the soldiers to such drudgery, races, long marches under heavy burdens, cooking for themselves, etc. that willing and hardworking soldiers were thenceforward called Marius' mules. 2) Scipio in the siege of Numantia was so pleased with the condition of the horse and mule groomed by M. that he often spoke of them: οῦτως ἄρα τοὺς σκώπτοντας έν έπαίνω τον ένδελεχή και τλήμονα και φιλόπονον Μαριανόν ήμιονον προσαγορεύειν. 250 Flor. 1 37 = 111 3 § 4 sed nec primum impetum barbarorum Silanus [cons. Vell. II 12 § 5 'Marius, in his fifth consulship [B.C. 101], in the plains called the Raudii Campi on this side the Alps, gained a decisive victory in conjunction with the proconsul Q. Lutatius Catulus. One hundred thousand men were killed or taken.' Plut. Mar. 27 'The whole credit was given to Marius, both on account of his previous victory, and his superior rank. And, what was most of all, the people gave him the title of the third founder of Rome ... and they thought that he alone ought to celebrate both triumphs. Marius however did not triumph alone, but Catulus shared the honour, for Marius ... was afraid of the soldiers, who were prepared not to let Marius triumph, if Catulus was deprived of the honour.' 254—258 The souls of the Decii were plebeian, plebeian their names, yet to mother Earth and the gods below their sacrifice was an atonement sufficient for all the legions of Rome, 'themselves more worth than all the host they saved.'

254 DECIORUM XIV 239. Before the great battle with the Latins near Vesuvius, B.C. 340, the two consuls, P. Decius Mus and T. Manlius Torquatus, having been warned in a dream (Liv. VIII 6 § 10) ex una acte imperatorem, ex altera exercitum dis manibus matrique terrae deberi, agreed that whichever of them should see his wing give way, should devote himself. The wing of Decius giving way, he devoted himself with these words ib. 9 § 8 'pro republica Quiritium, exercitu, legionibus, auxiliis populi Romani Quiritium, legiones auxiliaque hostium mecum dis manibus Tellurique devoveo.' ib. x 7 §§ 3—4. Plut. moral. 499 states that he devoted himself to Saturn. Again P. Decius Mus, the son of the foregoing, followed his father's example, when consul for the fourth time, B.C. 295, in a great battle with the Samnites and Gauls at Sentinum Liv. x 28 (see Nieb. h. R. iii 383). Cicero in two passages (fin. ii § 61. Tusc. ii § 89) mentions a third devotion by the grandson of the first Decius, in a battle fought at Asculum with Pyrrhus, B.C. 279. Elsewhere however he speaks only of the father and son (Arnold h. R. ii 509). Clason (röm. Gesch. ii 240) rejects the story of the devotion.

Tusc. 1 § 116 with which Plut, parall, 20 compares the immolation by Marius of his daughter Calpurnia in the Cimbric war), of Metioche and Menippe daughters of Orion, who thrice invoked the infernal gods (Antonin. Liberal. 25. Ov. m. xiii 692-6), of the maidens of Lacedaemon and Falerii (Plut. parall. 35), of M. MEN pray for eloquence, strength, wealth, and thus invite their own ruin upon themselves (1-27). Well might Democritus and Heraclitus in this vanity of human wishes find matter, the one for laughter, the other for tears (28-53). For what may we pray (54-5)? Vaulting ambition o'erleaps itself: witness Seianus, Crassus, Pompeius, Caesar (56-113). The schoolboy envies the eloquence of Demosthenes and Cicero; yet it had been well for Cicero, if he had only been known as the meanest of poets: for Demosthenes, if he had never left his father's smithy (114-132). How passing is military glory, and how uncertain military power, appears in Hannibal and Xerxes: Alexander, for whom the world was all too strait, found rest at last in an urn (133-187). Length of days does but bring decay of body and mind. Peleus and Nestor, had they died early, would not have mourned the loss of Achilles and of Antilochus. Priam, Hecuba, Croesus, Mithridates, Marius, Pompeius were spared to their own hurt (188-288). Beauty is dangerous even to the chaste; example of Silius (289-345). Leave to the gods, who know what is best for you, to order your lot as they will: pray only for health of mind and body, that you may bravely bear the worst (346-365).

Our satire is referred to by Chaucer Troilus and Creseide iv 25 'O Juvenall lord, true is thy sentence, | that little wenen folke what is to yerne, | that they ne finden in hir desire offence, | for cloud of errour ne lette hem discerne | what best is.' Exprest in a paraphrastical transcript of Juvenal's tenth satyre.' A few verses are borrowed by Hall. There is a fine version by Sir John Beaumont, Chalmers british poets vi 43-7; and another in Hen. Vaughan's works, ed. Grosart, 11 31-55. Johnson's 'Vanity of human wishes' is an imitation.

1-11 In every land, from furthest west to furthest east, few only can discern true blessings from their counterfeits, clear from all mist of error. For what do we with reason fear, covet with reason? what do you undertake with foot so right, with a start so lucky, but you rue your attempt and the success of your desire? Whole houses have fallen on their own petition, when indulgent gods have taken them at their word. In peace, in war, men crave what will only harm them; his flood of speech is often the orator's death-warrant; rash trust in his thews, the wonder of the world, made Milo a prey of wolves. VM. vII 2 E § 1 (a passage which, as also Plat. Alc. II and Pers. II, Iuv. had before him) 'mind of mortals, wrapt in thickest darkness [Iuv. 4 nebula], over how wide a field of error dost thou throw thy prayers broadcast: thou seekest wealth, which has been the destruction of many [12-27]: thou lustest after honours, which have ruined not a few [133-187]; thou broodest over dreams of sovereignty, whose issue is often seen to be pitiable [56-113]: thou graspest at splendid marriages [350-3]; but they, though sometimes they add glory to families, yet not seldom overthrow them utterly' [funditus domos evertunt. cf. 7].

12-27 Still more numerous are the victims of money: the fortune piled up with endless pains, towering among all other incomes, as a British whale among dolphins, chokes its master. In Nero's reign of terror it was the rich who were singled out for slaughter, the full sponge was squeezed: Longinus and the wide park of wealthy Seneca were invested by a whole cohort; the sumptuous mansion of Lateranus was beset: seldom does a soldier come to ransack the garret of the poor. Though you carry but a few small pieces of plain silver plate, you will fear the sword and pike as you set out on your journey before dawn; the shadow of a reed quivering in the moon will set you quaking. The wayfarer who has no such dangerous load will sing unconcerned before the footpad's face. The first prayer, most familiar to every temple, is for riches, that our funds may grow, our coffer be the best-filled in all the exchange. Yet no poison is drunk from earthen bowls; then fear it, when you put a jewelled cup to your lips, costly Setine wine sparkling in a broad beaker of gold.

SENECAE PRAEDIVITIS HORTOS Tac. xv 64 fin. (of Seneca) praedives et praepotens. Auson. grat. act. § 31 dives Seneca. cf. n. on sat. r 137 init. In his tract on happiness, addressed to his brother Gallio, Seneca represents his enemies as contrasting his frugal precepts with his sumptoous life vit. beat. 17 § 2 seq. 'Why do you not dine by your own rule? why have you handsome furniture? wine made before you were born?... why have you estates beyond sea, more than you have ever seen?... more slaves than you can recollect?' See the whole treatise and ep. 87 on the true riches. In his consolation addressed to his mother Helvia 14 § 3 he says that she always rejoiced in her sons' wealth, but never drew upon it. A. D. 55 some blamed Seneca and Burrus, viros gravitatem adseverantes, for dividing houses and country mansions among them as so much booty Tac. XIII 18. A. D. 58 P. Suillius asked (Tac. XIII 42) 'by what philosophic rule Seneca had, in four years of imperial favour, amassed 300,000,000 sesterces? [cf. DCass. LXI 10. The fortune of Pallas was the same; Narcissus and Cn. Lentulus had each 400 millions Friedländer 12 192]. At Rome he swept up as in a drag-net bequests and orbi. and drained Italy and the provinces [e.g. Britain DCass, LXII 2] by exorbitant usury.' A. D. 62 Seneca was accused (Tac. xiv 52) of still adding to wealth already exceeding a private standard, of ambitious designs, and of outdoing the emperor himself in the splendour of his parks and country houses, hortorum amoenitate et villarum magnificentia. Sen. to Nero (ib. 53): 'You have heaped upon me such an abundance of offices and wealth, that nothing is wanting to my good fortune but to moderate it.... You have surrounded me with boundless treasures, so that I often ask myself, Do I, a man of equestrian and provincial family, take rank with the noblest of the realm?... where is that spirit satisfied with a modest fortune ! does it lay out such parks as these, tales hortos extruit, and stalk through these suburban estates, and run riot in so vast territories, such boundless revenues? The only excuse that presents itself is (cf. Sen. de ben. 11 18) that I was not free to reject gifts from your hand.' He begs (c. 54) to be relieved of the burden which oppresses him; he would gladly devote to the improvement of his mind the time now set apart for the management of his property, quod temporis hortorum aut villarum curae seponitur. Nero replies (c. 55) 'what you have done for me will abide with me till death; what you have received from me, horti, et fenus et villae, is all at the mercy of chance. . . . I am ashamed to name freedmen, who are seen richer than you. I blush to think that you do not excel all the world in fortune, as you do in worth.' In short he refused to relieve Seneca of his wealth (c. 56. Suet. Nero 35); who however changed his course of life, holding no more levées, and keeping close within doors. A. D. 62 (Tac. His wife insisted on sharing his fate (Tac. 61—63). Seneca's nephew, Lucan, also the owner of horti marmorei (Iuv. vir 79—80) engaged in the conspiracy from personal pique, Nero having disparaged his poems (Tac. xv 49); he denounced his own mother (ib. 56), but did not thereby escape death (ib. 70). Mela, Lucan's father. while endeavouring to secure his son's property, was accused on the strength of a forged correspondence, which Nero, opibus eius inhians (Tac. xvi 17), professed to receive as genuine. 28-53 Now then [knowing the vanity of human wishes] must you not praise Democritus for laughing, Heraclitus for weeping, when they had moved but one step from their sill? But every man can play the censor with caustic flout; 'tis more marvel whence that store of brine held out for the eyes. Democritus used to shake his lungs with endless laughter, though Abdera had none of our Roman pomp, robes of state, lictors, fasces, sedans, praetor's court. How if he had seen the mock majesty of our circensian procession? the practor standing out from his lofty car, towering high amid the dusty circus, in tunic figured with palm.

leaves, borrowed from the temple of Iuppiter, trailing from his shoulders the purple hangings of a starred toga, and on his head a crown, whose heavy hoop no neck can support: for a public slave sweats beneath the load, slave and consul riding in one car, that the consul may remember he is but man? Add too the eagle, rising from the ivory wand, on that side cornets, on this citizens in snow-white gowns at the horses' reins, a long train marching to grace the show before their patron, whose hoarded dole has bought their friendship. Even in day's of yore every chance meeting with his kind furnished food for laughter to him, whose wisdom proves that greatest men, destined to leave high examples behind them, may arise in the native home of blockheads, under a gross, foggy sky. Democritus mocked the business of the crowd and its pleasures, sometimes its very tears; while he himself bid frowning Fortune go hang, and snapt his fingers in her face.

This contrast between Heraclitus and Democritus is very common Lucian vit, auct. 13-4, where the pair are put up together in the sale of philosophers. de sacrif. 15. Sotion in Stob. floril. xx 53. Tzetz. chil. 11 720-1. Iuv. follows Sen. de trang. an. 15 §§ 2-3 we must bring ourselves to regard all the faults of the vulgar as ridiculous, not as hateful, and imitate rather Democritus than Heraclitus. hic enim, quotiens in publicum processerat [Iuv, 29-30], flebat, ille ridebat. huic omnia, quae agimus, miseriae, illi ineptiae videbantur. id. de ira 11 10 § 5 Heraclitus quotiens prodierat et tantum circa se male viventium, immo male pereuntium viderat, flebat, miserebatur omnium qui sibi laeti felicesque occurrebant, miti animo, sed nimis imbecillo: et ipse inter deplorandos erat. Apoll. 11 171-2 quidquid Pythagoras, Democritus, Heraclitus, | deflevit, risit, tacuit, where observe the chiasmus. The tears of Heraclitus and laughter of Democritus are apocryphal. See A. Chassang hist. du roman et de ses rapports avec l'histoire dans l'antiquité grecque et latine, Paris 1862, partie 11 ch. 2 'le roman philosophique.' No more happy example of grave mockery could have been found than the triumphal procession at the games. The practor, whose chief function was now the management of shows, assumed the state proper to those who had enlarged the bounds of empire. The emperor alone, or his sons or nephews, were now permitted to triumph, but the decorations and solemn ritual and universal acclamations remained as before: or rather the shadow outdid the substance in parade. For the populace, to be kept in humour, must have its circenses as well as its panem.

There were two kinds of embroidery used in Rome, the Phrygian in cross-stitch, the work of phrygiones; the Babylonian in satin-stitch are plumaria, the work of plumarii: the former corresponds to engraving by dots, 'stippling,' the latter to line engraving. The tunica palmata was χρυσοποίκιλτος οτ χρυσοποίκιλος (DS. xviii 26 § 4. Athen. 198°), a work of the are plumaria; the toga picta was spangled with stars, χρυσόπαστος, a work of the phrugiones. Tert. de cor. 13 Etruscan crowns are of jewels and gold, in the form of oak leaves, and are worn by magistrates with the togae palmatae (so the toga picta is often called Rein in Pauly vi 2249). Mart. viii 33 1 (thinness of the gold-leaf in the praetoricia corona; hence Iuv. is speaking ironically, when he says that the slave sweated under the burden). Beside this crown, the general wore a crown of laurel on his head Becker III 2 442.

SUFFICIT a very common word in the silver age; used 23 times by Iuv.

41 servus publicus those prisoners of war who were not sold by the state were retained in its service as servi publici; or they were bought by the state or bequeathed to it. Their condition was better than that of private slaves (Wallon hist, de l'esclavage III 59, 96. 98. 99), they were able to save money, and had free quarters found them by the censors. They served the magistrates as assistants to the accensi and apparitores, were employed in the census, in prisons, at executions, at sacrifices, in quarries, mines, waterworks etc.; they bought and sold on behalf of the state Rein in Pauly vi 1102—4. And there hung from the chariot a bell and scourge, to signify that he might even be unfortunate, so as even to be outraged or even condemned to death. For the custom is that convicts sentenced to death for any crime bear a bell, that no one may contract defilement by brushing against them as they walk.' 'to lower his pride in revelations (2 Cor. 12 9) a certain monitor of human frailty is assigned to him, in similitudinem triumphantium, quibus in curru retro comes adhaerebat per singulas acclamationes civium, dicens hominem to esse memento.' This is much better evidence

than that of Ael. v. h. viii 15 for the slave of Philip of Macedon, whose business it was three times in the morning to remind him that he was a man: this was after the victory of Chaeronea. Isidor. xviii 2 § 6 makes of the slave an executioner, but his interpretation is just, ut ad tantum fastigium evecti mediocritatis humanae commonerentur. III 2 § 11 Diogenes exposed a sophist by stretching out the middle finger; and when he broke out into a fury, said: 'There you see the man; I have shewn him to you.' It was a gesture worthy of a cynic: some strangers asking to see Demosthenes (DL. vi § 34) Diogenes held out his middle finger and said 'There you have the famous orator of the Athenians.' Again (§ 35) he said that a finger made all the difference between madness and sanity with most men: hold out the middle finger, and they will think you mad; but not if you hold out the index finger. DChrys. 33 II 18 R. 'what would a man think of a city, where all held out the middle finger in pointing, in shaking hands, in holding up the hands, in elections, in passing sentence?.... these are the things which have given your enemies occasion to reproach you.' To shoot out the middle finger from the clenched fist, in shape of the phallus, at a man, was to taunt him in the most injurious manner, as a pathic. Hence the gr. name for this finger was καταπύγων Phot. s. v. Poll. II 184 καταπυγής. In Lat. verpus, gloss. s. v. verpus and δρίλος (cf. schol. Iuv. II 95). Such an affront caused Chaerea to plot against Gaius (Caligula Suet. 56). Like many obscene gestures, this was regarded as a defence against the evil eye, O. Jahn in Ber. d. sächs. Gesellsch. 17 Febr. 1855, 82, who cites Echtermeyer über Namen und symbolische Bedeutung der Finger bei den Griechen u. Römern, Halle 1835, 21 seq. Jorio mimica degli antichi 136 seq. ['Ergo begins a new paragraph, as it so often does with an interrogative, or an imperative; in coming back from a digression. Iuvenal may have written: ergo supervacua aut ut perniciosa petuntur, propter quae fas est genua incerare deorum? that is, ergo, ut supervacua aut perniciosa inceratis genibus deorum petuntur, ita quae vere utilia et pia hoc modo petuntur? "Well then to come back to our subject, even as superfluous or hurtful things are, as we have seen, asked for in prayer, what things may we with propriety ask for?" Then he goes on to put cases: then 103 ergo quid optandum-Seianum, as if with reference to our ergo. Then he goes on to other cases; and then 346 Nil ergo optabunt etc., as if again with reference to our ergo, The ut merely repeating the letters of aut is a very easy emendation. The omission of ita in the apodosis is very common in poetry, and even in prose. I had first thought of another emendation: haut I find from Jahn's index occurs eight times in Iuvenal: in three of the eight places P has aut, a blunder common of course in all MSS.: in seven of the eight places too I think haut is joined with an adjective, as furor haut dubius. I thought then of reading ergo supervacua haut, haut perniciosa petuntur, | propter etc. with a question: "Are then the things asked for in prayer not superfluous, not pernicious, things for which we may with propriety petition the gods?" 56-113 Some fall in headlong ruin through great power exposed to as great envy. The long and stately roll of their dignities wrecks them : down go their statues, following the tugging rope, then the stroke of the axe shatters the very chariot-wheels of their triumphal statues, and the innocent horses, like malefactors on the cross, have their legs broken. Now hiss the fires, now the bellows blow, and the head worshipped by the Roman people is a-glow in the forge, mighty Scianus crackles: then of the face second to one only in the wide world, are made ewers, washpots, frying pans, vessels for every meanest use. Festoon your homes with bays, lead to the Capitol for sacrifice a tall and whited ox: for 'tis a general holiday; Seianus is drawn along the streets by the hangman's hook, a public show; not a man but rejoices over him. "Nothing of this: a long and wordy despatch arrived from Capreae." 'Good : if Caesar writes, I ask no more.' But what does the throng of Remus? It sides with fortune, as ever, and hates those on whom sentence has gone forth. The same people, if Nortia had smiled upon her Tuscan, if the emperor's age had been crushed off its guard, would this very hour proclaim Scianus Augustus. Long ago, since we ceased to have votes to sell, it shook off state cares: once it granted commands, fasces, legions, what it pleased; now it narrows its ambition, and dotes on two boons alone, bread and the shows. 'I am told that many will die.' "No doubt of it; a great furnace is heated; Brutidius met me at Mars' altar, and my friend was pale. How I fear, lest Aiax take vengeance on Brutidius for his defeat, as due to his sorry pleading. Let us run at full speed, and while yet he lies on the bank, trample on Caesar's foe. But let our slaves be there to see our loyal zeal, lest any denying it, collar his master and drag him quaking for fear to the bar." This was then the talk, these the whispers of the crowd respecting Scianus. Would you be courted as Seianus was? be master of his wealth, and bestow on one curule chairs of highest rank, on another the charge of armies? be counted guardian of an emperor perched with his wizard crew on Capreae's narrow cliff? you would at least wish to have pikes and troops at command, young nobles on your staff, a guard quartered in your house? why should you not? even they who lack the will to kill, would fain enjoy the power. Yet what glory or success can make you content with joy counterpoised by trouble? Would you choose the robe of state of him whose corpse is now dragged in scorn, or be a country mayor of Gabii or Fidenae, passing sentence on false weights, an aedile in tattered tunic at deserted Ulubrae, breaking short measures? You confess then that Seianus mistook the true objects of desire; for while coveting excessive dignities and grasping at excessive wealth, he was but rearing the numerous stages of a lofty tower, from which his fall might be from the greater height, and his crash once set in movement, might be from a more appalling steep. What overwhelmed the Crassi, what the Pompeii, and that Caesar who tamed the Quirites and brought them under the lash? Why, ambition that spared no means to secure the highest place, and aspiring prayers heard and granted by heaven's displeasure. kings go down to Pluto without a stab, few tyrants by a bloodless death.

The Seianus of Ben Jonson embodies nearly all that history records of the mighty favorite; in particular a very spirited and faithful version of these lines of Iuv. Wolsey, chosen by Johnson as the modern Scianus, resembles him in his power and his fall: otherwise the comparison is far too flattering to Seianus, who more nearly resembled Thos. Cromwell. Cf. Shakspeare's Henry VIII. esp. Wolsey's farewell to his greatness.

I saw the busts carried in mock procession to the parapet of the Pont Neuf and thrown into the Seine, clapping of hands and hearty laughter greeting the splash which the graven image of the mighty monarch made in the water. Portraits of the emperor and empress, which many of your readers must have seen in the Hôtel de Ville ball-rooms, were thrown out of the windows and the people trod and danced [ver. 86] upon the canvas.' relations and friends and all others who had flattered him and moved the votes of honours for him, were put on their trial. Most of them were convicted for what had made them envied before, and the others sentenced them for measures which they themselves had before supported. Many who had been tried and acquitted, were accused again and condemned, as having owed their former escape to his favour. In default of any other charge, it was enough to secure a man's punishment that he had been a friend of S., as though T. himself had not loved him and so been the occasion of the devotion of the others to him. The very creatures of S. turned informers; for they had no difficulty, from their exact knowledge of those like themselves, in discovering and convicting them etc. ib. 16 § 6 after a while a kind of amnesty was proclaimed: T. declared that all were free to mourn S. or any one else who had suffered. cf. VM. IX 11 § 4 Seeing all crimes outdone by the design of one single parricide, I hasten with affection more loyal than powerful ad id lacerandum. Who can execrate as he deserves one who essayed, abolishing every bond of friendship, to bury in bloody darkness the human race? More savage than Brennus and Hannibal, S. aspired to seize the reins which our prince and father holds in his saving right hand. But the gods' eyes were awake, the stars maintained their influence, altars and temples were fenced by a divine presence, nor did aught, that was bound to keep guard for that august head and the country, allow itself to slumber; above all the author and guardian of our safety by his divine wisdom provided that his most surpassing merits should not be overwhelmed in the general wreck of the world. So peace stands fast, the laws prevail, the even course of private and public duty is maintained unharmed. But he who, in violation of the covenants of friendship, plotted the overthrow of this happy state, omni cum stirpe sua obtritus, by the might of the Roman people, pays the penalty he has deserved in hell, if indeed he has found admittance even there. LVIII 9 Tiberius wrote to Naevius Sertorius Macro appointing him prefect of the praetorians; he prepared Memmius Regulus one of the consuls (the other was a creature of S.) and Granicus Laco commander of the night police. Meeting S. troubled at not hearing from Tiberius, he privately assured him that the tribunicia potestas was designed for him. When S. had entered the senate-house (in the temple of Apollo Palatinus), Macro dismissed the praetorian guards of S. and the senate to their camp, shewing his commission and promising them a largess. He replaced them by vigiles, delivered the letter to the consuls, and proceeded to the praetorian camp. ib. 10 Meanwhile the letter was read; it was long; no continuous attack on S., but first some other topic, then a few words of censure, then another indifferent matter, then further censure. At the close it declared that two senators connected with S. ought to be punished, and he himself kept in custody. There was no downright sentence of death on S., T. fearing an outbreak. In order to secure himself on the way to Rome, T. summoned one of the consuls to his presence [cf. Tac. an. vi 2. Suct. Tib. 651. Before the letter was read. S. was greeted with plaudits, and congratulated on the prospect of the tribunicia potestas. As the reading went on, perplexity and confusion seized the senators: practors and tribunes surrounded S. Regulus called him, but he did not obey; not from contempt, for he was cowed, but from being unused to receive orders. When Regulus a third time, stretching out his hand cried, Scianus, come hither; he meekly asked 'Do you call me?' and rose from his seat. The senate with one mouth reviled him: yet because of his many adherents Regulus did not venture to put the question of his condemnation to the general vote, but asked a single senator whether he should be cast into prison; and so with Laco and the other magistrates led him to the career. AD RHETORA MISIT the orator was far too young (being only 7 years of age Dem. 814 9) to have entered the school of rhetoric at his father's death. He complains (828 5) that his teachers were defrauded by Aphobos; Plut. Dem. 4 § 2 adds that he thereby lost the opportunity of a good education, and that his mother kept him back on the score of his weak health; but Aeschines (3 § 255 p. 90) ridicules his boyish indifference to hunting and games, in comparison with the art of rhetoric; and Dem. himself (312 21. 315 7) declares that he went in due course to school. His master in oratory was Isaeos (Plut. Dem. 5 § 3. Schäfer 1. c. 252—8), whom he kept in his house for four years [Plut.] vit. x or. 844°, in order to prepare himself for the charge of embezzlement against his guardians; a fee of 10,000 drachms recompensed Isaeos, on leaving his school for a single pupil ib. 639°. Schäfer treats at length, ib. 272—308, of the later studies of Demosthenes, and the traces of his model Isaeos in his earlier speeches.

133—187 Spoils of wars, a corslet hung on stumps of trophies, a cheekpiece dangling from the battered casque, a chariot yoke short of its pole, a flagstaff from a prize galley, and a pensive prisoner carved high on the triumphal arch, these are ranked as more than human blessings. To this a Roman, Greek and barbarian captain has raised his soaring thoughts; toys like these have been the mainsprings of his hazard and his toil. much fiercer is the thirst of renown than of virtue; for, bate her rewards, who wooes bare virtue for herself? Yet their country was long ago sunk by the pride of a few, by their itch of applause and of an epitaph that might cleave to the stones that guard their ashes; stones to spring which there needs but the mischievous growth of the wild-fig tree, since tombs themselves have their appointed hour of doom. Lay Hannibal in the scale; how many pounds will you find in that greatest of commanders? yet this is he for whom Africa has not room,—Africa lashed by the Atlantic main to the west, stretching eastward to lukewarm Nile, and again southward to the Ethiopians and their tall elephants. added to his rule, he scales the Pyrenees: Nature reared a barrier of Alp and snow, he rends the rock and blasts the mountain with the steam of vinegar. Now Italy is won, yet still he pushes onward: 'Nothing,' he cries, 'is done, unless we storm the gates with our Carthaginian power, and I plant my colours in mid Subura.' O what a visage, o for a painter's canvas to do it justice, when the one-eyed general bestrode his Gaetulian elephant! What then is his end? O pride! why, vanquished in his turn, he posts into banishment, and sits there a mighty retainer, the marvel of a gaping crowd, in the lobby of a court, till his Bithynian majesty may deign to wake. Not swords, nor volleys of stones, nor darts, shall quench that soul, which once embroiled the world, but that avenger of Cannae, the poisoned ring, making amends for floods of Roman blood. Go, madman, scour the stormy Alps, to become the wonder of school-boys, to furnish out a theme for a speech-day show. For Pella's youth one single globe is all too small; he chafes, poor soul, in the narrow bounds of the universe, as though pent in Gyara and tiny Seriphus; yet, let him once set foot in Babylon that city of brick, and a stone coffin will satisfy his every want: death and death alone betrays the nothingness of men's puny frames, what dwarfs our bodies are. Ships sailing across mount Athos, and other bold lies of Greek history, have long passed for truth, the sea paved by the same navy, a firm roadway for wheels; we believe that deep rivers failed and their streams were drained to the dregs as the Mede broke his fast, and whatever else Sostratus sings and strains himself to sing with reeking armpits. Yet in what plight did he return, after the flight from Salamis,—he who in barbarian fashion was wont to storm with the lash against the North-West and South-East, winds that had never brooked like outrage in their Aeolian dungeon,he who had fettered earth-shaking Neptune's self—so far relenting, no doubt, that he did not sentence him to be branded to boot! Would any god accept service under such a lord!—But in what plight, I say, did he return? why with one poor bark, while the waves ran blood and the cumbered prow struggled through shoals of corpses. Such forfeit did glory—glory sought with prayers—wring from him. A parallel passage, which Iuv. may have had in mind, is Manil. Iv 37 seq. Trophies were borrowed by the Romans from Greece, and often appear on coins, always in the shape of the trunk of a tree with a cross bar hung with arms. See Aen. xi 5—11.

had held only a few factories in Spain till the S. and W. coasts of the peninsula were reduced by Hamilear Barcas B. C. 236—228 and his sonin-law Hasdrubal 227—220, who thus opened out for Carthage a source of wealth, a school of arms, and a recruiting ground (Flor. I 22=II 6 § 38).
As a boy of thirteen Hannibal accompanied his father Hamilear to Spain B. C. 236; in B. C. 220 he succeeded the murdered Hasdrubal as commander-in-chief there, having before commanded the cavalry; in 218 he crossed the Pyrenees with a combined army of Spaniards and Africans;

Grote hist. gr. c. 38 III 372-3 gives analogous examples of impotent revenge, to justify his belief in the story, which Stanley on Aesch. Pers. 752, Valck. on Hdt. vii 35 § 1, Blomf. gloss. Pers. 728 and Curtius, all regard, apparently with justice, as a legend, expressing the Greek detestation of that blasphemous vigous of X., which revolted against the bounds imposed on man by nature, non tangenda rates transiliunt vada. Cnut on the shore has been well contrasted with this anecdote of Xerxes; the didactic purpose in each case is patent, and the birth of the Greek story might, as Blomf. notes, have been aided by description of the bridge in the Persae 745—51 where Darius says of his son. hurrying blindly to his doom Ελλήσποντον Ιρον δοῦλον ῶς δεσμώμασιν | ήλπισε σχήσειν βέοντα, Βόσπορον βόον θεοῦ | καὶ πόρον μετερρύθμιζε, καὶ πέδαις σφυρηλάτοις | περιβαλών πολλήν κέλευθον ήνυσεν πολλώ στρατώ, | θνητός ών θε ών δε πάντων ψετ, οὐκ εὐβουλία | και Ποσειδώνος κρατήσειν. 187 EXEGIT POENAS 84. Mühlmann exigo

986 - 7.188—238 'Grant length of days, grant, great Iuppiter, years good store!' This prayer you offer with set, unflinching look, this alone even pale [with fear of refusal]. Yet mark, what an endless chain of troubles, and how sore troubles, fill long-lasting age. See first and foremost the face unsightly, foul and all unlike itself, in place of skin an unfeatured hide, sagging cheeks, and wrinkles such as, where Thabraca stretches its shady glades, a grandam ape scratches in her time-worn chaps. Youth from youth are distinguished by countless marks; that is fairer than this, and that again than another, this sturdier far than that: the old have one only aspect: palsy in limbs and voice, a scalp now smooth, a nose snivelling in second childhood, toothless gums wherewith, poor soul, to mump his bread: so loathsome to wife and sons and to his very self, as to strike qualms into the fortune-hunter Cossus. His palate numbed, wine and meat have no more the relish that they once had. The appetite of sex also is lost or powerless. Turn to another organ. Sing who may, the rarest of harpers, even Seleucus, and such as glitter amid the choir in a suit of gold, what charm has all their music for ears that are deaf? What odds to him, where in the wide theatre he sits, who can scarce hear cornets or the trumpets' blare? 'under an actor's nose he's never near.' His page must bawl to let him know who has come, or what's o'clock.

Once more, the little blood still left in his frozen frame is thawed by fever only: on all hands ailments manifold muster for the assault; ask me their names, I will sooner dispatch the lists of matron Oppia's paramours. of patients murdered in a single autumn by Themison's drugs, of partners cosened by Basilus, orphan wards by Hirrus, of gallants received in a day by the tall strumpet Maura, of boys corrupted by the schoolmaster Hirrus; -- sooner will I rehearse the mansions now owned by him. under whose razor my strong beard rustled in my youth. One is feeble in the shoulder, one in loins, one in hip; another, blind of both eyes, envies those who still have one; this man's bloodless lips take food with others' fingers; as for himself, long inured to stretch his jaws at sight of supper, he 'gapes and gapes and that is all,' like the swallow's brood, to whom their mother flies with full beak, herself fasting. But worse still than all decay of limbs is memory's decay, which recalls neither his slaves' names nor the friend's features, with whom he supped but yesternight, nor those whom he begot and bred; for by an unnatural testament he disinherits his own flesh and blood; all his estate is devised to Phiale, in return for wanton services, learnt by many years' apprenticeship in the dungeon of the stews. Grant him still sound in mind, yet he must lead out his sons to burial, must gaze on his beloved wife's and his brother's pyre, on urns charged with sisters' dust. This forfeit is laid on all long livers; stroke on stroke lighting upon their home, they grow old amid 'griefs always green, a household still in tears,' in a standing livery of Nestor, if we put any faith in great Homer, was a pattern of long life second only to the crow; happy sure, who staved off death through three ages and already tells the sum of his years on the right hand, and has broached the new wine of so many seasons. But soft, stand a while, and hear him repining at fate's decrees, at the thread of days too lavishly spun, when, watching his bold son Antilochus' beard blazing in the funeral flame, he asks every comrade about him, why he lasts to these years, what he ever did to deserve so lingering an age? So Peleus murmured, while he mourned Achilles untimely snatched away, so Laertes, whom nature bids lament the storm-tost Ulixes. While Troy was yet secure, Priam would have made his last progress to the shade of Assaracus in royal state,—Hector and his other sons shouldering the hearse amid weeping daughters of Ilium, so that Cassandra might lead their wailing with beaten breast and Polyxena with her robe rent,—if only he had died before Paris began to build his daring keels. What then did Priam win by the long respite? He saw a general wreck, all Asia crumbling under fire and sword. Then doffing his diadem, he took arms, a tottering soldier ['a soldier half, and half a sacrifice'] and dropped down before the altar of high Iuppiter, like some decrepit steer, which disdained long since by the thankless plough, tamely yields to his master's knife a neck lean and pitiable. Yet that was at least a human death; his queen outlived him, but only to glare grimly and snarl with a true cur's grin ['survived a bitch and barked away her life']. I hasten now to Rome, passing Mithradates by, and Croesus, whom righteous Solon's eloquent voice charged to regard the closing evening of a long life. Banishment, jail, Minturnae's fens, the bread of beggary in vanquished Carthage,—all these lapse of days brought upon Marius. What would nature ever have engendered on earth, or what Rome, happier than that her citizen, if only he had straightway breathed out his victorious soul, after heading the procession of prisoners and all the pageant of his wars, in the act of alighting from his Teutonic car? Campania in her forethought had sent Pompeius fevers for which he had done wisely to pray; but many cities and their state prayers prevailed to save him; so his fortune and the city's struck off after his defeat the head thus reprieved. This torture Lentulus escaped, this punishment Cethegus, and fell unmangled; nay, Catiline on the battle-field lay with corpse entire.

There is a brilliant account of Mithradates VI Eupator anth. app. 102 71. xıv 252—5 n. (cir. B. c. 130—+63, the year of Cicero's consulship) in Mommsen's history. If he shared with Priam etc. the sorrow of losing wife, brother, sister, and children before his death, the fault was his own, for many of them died by his orders (App. Mithr. 112). Gigantic of stature, hardy and fleet of foot, restless in enterprise, he fought in the thickest of the fight in his old age, could speak all the 21 tongues spoken by his subjects, and was the one formidable obstacle to Roman power in the east before the Parthian wars. To Pontus he added at different times Skythia, Kappadokia, Paphlagonia, Galatia, Bithynia, Lykia, Pamphylia, Bosporos, Kolchis, pushed his frontiers to Caucasus, and gained a footing in Greece proper, where his forces held out at Athens against Sulla, B. C. 86, one of the most memorable of sieges. In his three wars with the Romans he encountered Q. Oppius, L. Cassius, M'. Aquilius, Sulla, Fimbria, Murena, Cotta, Fabius, Triarius, Lucullus, Pompeius; and formed an alliance with Sertorius. From his last battle with the Romans at Nikopolis B.C. 66 he fled with only three attendants, and had a price set upon his head by Tigranes. Even after this (Plut. Pomp. 41 & 2. App. Mithr. 101, 109) he formed a plan for the invasion of Italy. His son Pharnakes, whom he designed for his successor, formed a plot against his life; being deserted by every one, he took poison, but in vain (Iuv. xiv 252 n.); and fell by the hand of a faithful Gaul App. 111. Pauly vi 100-12. DCass. xxxvi 11 he planned the invasion of Italy, choosing rather to die with his kingdom than to survive ingloriously. Cic. acad. II § 3 Lucullus called M. the greatest king since Alexander; cf. p. Mur. § 32. App. 112 '57 years a king, he waged war 40 years with Rome, was master of the sea from Kilikia to the Ionian gulph.' ib. 119. 274 CROESUM the beautiful story of the interview of Croesus with Solon was questioned on chronological grounds in antiquity (Plut. Sol. 27 § 1); Grauert, Grote book 11 c. 11 fin., Curtius, have shewn that, as reported by Hdt., it cannot have taken place; though the two may have met at another time; the travels of Solon lasted from B. c. 593-583; Croesus came to the throne B. C. 560; however DL. 1 §§ 50. 62 and Suid. speak of later travels; Solon died in Kypros. Duncker Gesch. d. Alterth. 12 596-7 accepts the story in the main, and dates the interview B. C. 560 or 559. M. Sen. contr. 9 § 7 p. 119 29 ille Croesus, inter reges opulentissimus, memento, post terga vinctis manibus deductus est. The story of Croesus, like that of Polykrates, well illustrates the Greek belief in divine Nemesis (ver. 42 n.). After his accession to the throne of Lydia, he added largely to his dominions by conquest (Hdt. 126—8): many Greeks famed for wisdom came to Sardis, and among them Solon (29). When Solon had seen all the royal treasures, Croesus asked, who was the happiest man that he knew, He replied Tellos of Athens, for he had begotten good sons, who had also children; and when he died fighting for his country, they all survived (30). Next to Tellos Solon ranked Kleobis and Biton of Argos, who died the night after they had drawn their mother, a priestess, to the temple (31). Croesus being angry with his guest for not naming him as the happiest of men, Solon reckons up the days in a life of 70 years, each day exposed to its own accidents; and shews that happiness does not increase in proportion to wealth: 'in every thing we must have regard to the end, how it will fall out at last: for God has shewn prosperity to many, whom afterwards he has plucked up by the roots' (32). Croesus dismisses Solon. thinking him very simple, blind to present prosperity, while he insists on keeping the end in view (33). Vengeance begins to fall on Croesus for his pride; he dreams that his son Atys is killed by the thrust of a spear (34. 38-9). The dream is fulfilled, and Croesus spends two years in mourning (35-46 § 1). Fearing the growing power of Persia, he consults the oracle, which declares, that by crossing the Halys he will ruin a mighty empire (46-56 § 1). He invades Kappadokia (69-71, 73, 75); after an indecisive engagement returning to Sardis, he is besieged by Cyrus, who takes him prisoner, and orders him to be burnt. On the pyre, remembering Solon's lesson, he calls thrice, Solon, Solon, Solon. enquiring the meaning of the cry, hears the tale; fearing divine vengeance, and remembering that his own fortune is as uncertain as his captive's, he orders the fire to be quenched; which the bystanders cannot do, when Apollo, moved by the prayers of Croesus, sends a heavy shower (76-87). On the proverbial wealth of Croesus see Pape-Benseler Kpoigos.

274-5 CROESUM QUEM VOX IUSTI FACUNDA SOLONIS RESPICERE AD LONGAE JUSSIT SPATIA ULTIMA VITAE this maxim (Hdt. 1 86 & 3) undéra είναι των ζωόντων δλβιον (cf. c. 33 Solon δε τὰ παρεόντα άγαθὰ μετείε την τελευτήν παντός χρήματος δράν έκέλευε) is very frequently cited. esp. in tragedy, of which it is the key-note DL. 276—282 from Vell. II 19 B.c. 88 'Sulla returned to Rome, occupied it by force of arms, and drove out from the city twelve ringleaders of revolution, among whom were Marius with his son and P. Sulpicius, ac lege lata exules fecit; ... Marius after his sixth consulship and his 70th year, naked and overwhelmed with mire, eyes only and nose rising above the water, was dragged forth from a bed of reeds hard by the swamp of Marica, wherein he had concealed himself when flying from the pursuit of Sulla's cavalry. A halter being thrown over his neck, he was led to the prison of the Minturnensians by order of the dumvir. A public slave, a German by nation, was sent with a sword to dispatch him; it chanced that this slave had been taken by him when imperator in the Cimbric war; no sooner did he recognise Marius, than uttering a loud shriek expressing indignation at so great a man's calamity, he threw away his sword and fled from the prison. Then his countrymen, taught by an enemy to compassionate one who was but lately the chief man in the state, furnished him with provisions and clothing and put him on board a ship; but he, coming up with his son near Aenaria. bent his course to Africa, and supported a life of destitution in a hut of the ruins of Carthage; while Marius beholding Carthage, Carthage gazing on Marius, might each comfort the other.' Crowds streamed out to meet P., streets, villages, and harbours were thronged with revellers and sacrifices. Many received him with garlands on head and torches in hand, threw flowers upon him and escorted him in procession. The blind self-confidence engendered by this progress was one main cause of the war. 289—345 With low whisper, at sight of Venus' temple, the eager mother craves beauty for her boys, for her girls aloud, even to a very daintiness of desire. 'Yet why rebuke?' she asks; 'Latona's self takes pride in her fair Diana.' Yet Lucretia's fate forbids the wish for features like Lucretia's: Verginia would fain take Rutila's hump, giving Rutila in exchange her own faultless shape. Still greater dangers await the beau: a blooming son keeps his parents on the rack with fear: so seldom is beauty mated with chastity. ['chaste is no epithet to suit with fair']. Though the plain home, taking after the ancient Sabines, may have handed down from sire to son spotless manners, though boon Nature may have done her part, dealing with liberal hand chaste affections, and a face flushed with modest blood (for what more can Nature bestow on a boy, Nature mightier than every keeper and every safeguard?) still the well-favoured youth may never be man; for the seducer's lavish hardihood is bold to bribe the very parents to their children's sin: such trust have they in the power of gifts. No tyrant ever in his cruel fortress unmanned a misshapen stripling, no Nero ever ravished a lad bandy-legged or wen-throated, gorbellied at once and hump-backed. Go to now, and rejoice in your spruce youth, whom greater perils await: he will turn adulterer general to the city and will fear vengeance, such as a wrathful husband may take, nor will be a luckier gallant than Mars that he should never be entrapped. Sometimes however that indignation takes more licence than any law has allowed to indignation; one stabs the paramour to death, another draws blood with the lash; some lechers also are elystered with the mugilis.—But your Endymion, I say, will prove the adulterer of a wedded dame whom he loves: presently.—when Servilia comes, money in hand,—of one whom he loathes; he will strip her of all her bravery; for what sacrifice will not any matron, be she Oppia or more profligate Catulla, make to her lusts? woman's whole character has its root there. But what harm does beauty to the chaste? nay, what good had Hippolytus of his temperate resolve, or what Bellerophon? For Stheneboea and Cretan Phaedra alike reddened as scorned by this rebuff, both took fire, both shook for rage: when shame goads hate, then it is that a woman is most ruthless. Choose what advice you think best for him whom Caesar's wife is bent on wedding in her husband's lifetime. The fairest at once and best of a patrician house is hurried off. to be slain poor soul by Messalina's eyes: long since she is seated in state, the flame-red wedding veil is ready, the coverlet of Tyrian purple is spread on the marriage-bed for all to see; the million sesterces of dowry will be made over in ancient form, witnesses will come to set their seal to the contract, the auspex to declare it blessed of heaven, thought this a secret, entrusted to a few; she will not marry but in due form of law. Say, Silius, what is your choice. Refuse, and you are a dead man before the lamps are lit; commit the crime, and a little respite will be granted, till the news, stale to the city and to all subjects, may reach the ears of Claudius. He will be the last to learn the stain on his home; meanwhile do you, if a few days' life is worth the price, obey the behest of Messalina: in either case, whichever event you think better and easier, this fair white neck must be offered to the headsman's sword. 289-97 on the fond prayers of parents see Sen. ep. 94 §§ 53-4

Endymion is a patronymic from ξνδυμος, and that from ἐνδύω; i.e. according to some, Endymion is a personification of sleep, and the name denotes the stealthy approaches of slumber; according to Welcker Götterl, 1 557-9 it denotes the visit of the goddess, her entrance into Endymion's cavern; the lingering of her rays on the grey rocks of Latmos, as it stands out in sharp outline against the blue sky, became in the legend the parting kiss with which she reluctantly tears herself from her Endymion. The image of the setting moon, when Selene was changed into the coy Artemis, became a handsome huntsman resting in the cavern, or a shepherd of the hills. who is wedded to a goddess cannot live, and so Endymion sleeps in his adyton on mt. Latmos in Karia (Paus. v 1 § 4 = 5) a sleep that knows no waking (Welcker). The Eleians also laid claim to Endymion and shewed his tomb (Paus. ib.), as did the Karians in a cave near the river Latmos Strab. p. 636. Hes. s. v. Sleep appears by his side in many sarcophagi and pictures (described by O. Jahn archäol. Beitr. 51— 73; e.g. the well-known bas-relief in the capitol). Näke on Valer. Cato 165-9 has collected the jests to which the story gave rise. Plut. Num. 4 § 3 has some interesting remarks on legends like this, comparing that of Egeria etc. John Fletcher the faithful shepherdess 1 3 (11 38-9 Dyce) tells the 'tale of love' well: 'how the pale Phoebe, hunting in a grove, | first saw the boy Endymion, from whose eyes | she took eternal fire that never dies; | how she convey'd him softly in a sleep, | his temples bound with poppy, to the steep | head of old Latmos, where she stoops each night, | gilding the mountain with her brother's light, | to kiss her sweetest.' 346—366 Conclusion. Is nothing then to be sought by our vows? If you wish my counsel, leave the gods themselves to decide what is meet for us, what can promote our welfare. Do they withhold what we like? They will bestow instead what is best. Dearer to them is man than to himself. Transported by passion and blind desire we ask for wife and child; what children they will be, and what manner of wife, is known to heaven. Still, that you may also put up some petition and offer some humble meat-offering, ask for a mind sound in a sound body; a spirit brave, fearless of death, reckoning life's close one of kind Nature's boons, equal to any toil, ignorant of anger or of desire, esteeming the labours and cruel pains of Hercules choicer than all Sardanapallus' dalliance and feasts and couches of down. I point to nothing but what yourself may give to yourself. The only road to peace lies through virtue. Fortune, thou hast no divinity, if but wisdom be with us; it is we that make of thee a goddess and set thee high in heaven. Upton (Spenser II 650—1)

XI

At the time of the Megalesian games (193), early in April, Iuv. invites his friend Persicus to a frugal dinner.

The rich epicure is admired; the poor, derided: our housekeeping and our whole plan of life should be in just proportion to our means (1—38). Many, it is true, neglect this golden rule; they rich for a while at Rome, and then retire to Baiae, to avoid their creditors (38-55).

To-day, my friend, you may judge whether I practise the frugality which I preach; whether I live like the worthies of those good old times when heaven itself guarded our city (56—119), or, like their pampered descendants, can relish no meal but such as is served on the costliest tables, by the most expert and elegant slaves (120—161). Let richer men enliven their feasts by voluptuous songs and dances: here you may listen, if you will, to Homer or his rival Virgil (162—182).

Leave then all care behind you; leave to younger men the dissipation of the Circus, and spend the festival with me in enjoyments better suited to our years (183-208).

Whether Persicus is a real or fictitious character does not appear; it is not certain that Iuvenal would have hesitated to address a living friend in such verses as 186 seq.

1—23 the cost of our table must be proportioned to our means; what is due state in Atticus, is stark madness in Rutilus. Many men waste their estate in dainty living that last they are fain to enist as sword-players, and put up with the hodge-podge of the trainer's barrack.

77-89 In the good old times such a dinner was a feast for the senate already grown less frugal. Curius Dentatus pluckt in his little garden and drest with his own hands pottage at which now a days rogues that dig in chains, pampered in the cookshops of Rome, turn up their nose. For gala days a flitch of bacon on the rack, to which might be added a chance joint from some sacrifice, was a treat to which retired consuls and dictators would hasten, shouldering their mattocks before the wonted time. 77 IAM LUXURIOSA Plin. 90—119 When Cato and Fabricius kept men in awe, and censors were a terror to their very colleagues, none cared to rifle the ocean for tortoiseshell; an ass's head, rudely cut in brass, sole ornament of the couch, was crowned for the feast, and about it the peasant children used to romp. Innocent of Greek art, the soldier defaced work of famous engravers, his share of booty, to adorn his horse or helmet; the wolf that suckled the Quirini, Mars with spear and shield, these were the decorations of his choice. He dined off earthen platters, saving such silver as he had to deck his arms. Yet then was heaven near to Rome; a divine voice foretold the inroad of the Gauls. So watchful was Iuppiter, as yet of clay, unspoilt by gold. Tables too were then of native timber, some

Spear the symbol of Mars 107 PENDENTIS Addison (fol-Marquardt IV 5. lowed by Spence Polymetis dial. 7 p. 77) with schol, makes this a second group, Mars 'descending upon the priestess Ilia' (see Addison's pl. 8 ser. IV Bohn). Lessing (Laokoon c. 7 the long note) retorts: the text makes no allusion to the priestess, who imports a hysteron proteron into the passage. Teuffel (cl. O. Müller's Denkmäler xxIII n. 252-254 where Mars visits Rea Silvia naked, or with a mantle hanging behind him, and bearing shield and spear) makes only one group: the twins suckled in a grotto by the wolf, watched by their father Mars, who bends over them. cf. [Other satires in the form of letters vi 21, viii 1, xi 57, xiii 5, 33, xv 1,]

To-day, Corvinus, I keep holy to the gods, who have delivered Catullus; nor, were my means equal to my affection, would I withhold the coefficients (1—16). For, after encountering all the perils of a storm, and cheerfully sacrificing his treasures to lighten the ship, he has reached in safety our new harbour (17—92). Wonder not then at my rejoicing, nor question its sincerity: he, for whom I raise so many altars, is no orbus, that a fortune-hunter should pay him court: even those who would offer their own children on the altar to propitiate the childless rich, would think any the smallest attention thrown away upon the father of three sons (93—130). 1—16 To-day, Corvinus, is sweeter to me than a birthday. To-day I perform the promised vow to the three gods of the Capitol, snow white lambs to Iuno and Minerva, to Iuppiter a calf just weaned; if my fortune were as my love, a fat bull from the Clitumnus should prove my gratitude for my friend's deliverance.

17-61 Catullus has escaped not only the risks of the waves but thunderbolts; darkness overcast the heaven with one cloud and a sudden flash caught the vard-arms: every man thought himself struck, and stunned with the shock counted blazing shrouds worse than any shipwreck. No terror by which poets add awe to a storm was wanting there. Hear another form of danger, and pity once more; though it is true what remains, if terrible, is but part and parcel of the same mischance, known to many, to which numerous temples by their votive tablets bear witness. Who knows not that painters look to Isis for their bread? The hold now half filled, as the billows rocked the ship, and the hoary master's skill found no help for the tottering tree, he compounded with the wind by lightening the vessel; as the beaver ransoms his life by biting off the drug for which he is hunted. 'Over with all that's mine' cried Catullus, readily offering purple robes fit for fops like Maecenas, Spanish woollens of native dye, chargers engraved by Parthenius, a bowl that holds a draught for Pholus or for Fuscus' wife, baskets, a thousand plates, embossed goblets in which Philip of Macedon had caroused. Who else the wide world over would, to save life, cast away his all? Most of the cargo is thrown out without relief; as a last resort the master fells the mast to ease the vessel by crippling her to a hulk. now, commit your life to the winds, trust a drest plank, and live four, or at most seven, fingers' breadth from death: and with bread-sack and wine-flagons, be sure to pack up axes against storms.

If hunted a second time, he rears και επιδείξας ότι της αυτών σπουδης ουκ έχει την υπόθεσιν, τοῦ περαιτέρω καμάτου παρέλυσε τούς θηρατάς. In this way they often gull the hunters: hiding το σπουδαζόμενον μέρος πάνυ σοφώς και πανούργως έξηπάτησαν, ώς οὐκ έχοντες α κρύψαντες είχου. This legend may have arisen from a peculiar property of the beaver: 'The animal has the power of retracting its testicles into the abdomen, where they abide as a rule, except in the season of sexual excitement. It never mutilates itself' (A. H. Garrod). Fr. Jacobs cites M. Glycas ann. 55d. and the collections of Allatius on Eustath. hexa. p. 189. cf. Solin. 2 § 38.

The sun brings back hope of life. Presently the white summit of Alba Longa comes in view, and the master brings his ship to anchor in the lee, behind the vast mole of Ostia's new harbour. 75 INCLUSA PER AEQUORA MOLES cf. 80 n. schol. 'portum Augusti dicit sive Traiani; quia Traianus portum Augusti restauravit in melius et interius tutiorem sui nominis fecit.' Trajan 'added an inner basin or dock, of a hexagonal form, surrounded with quays and extensive ranges of buildings for magazines' (Bunbury). The original work does great honour to the emperor Claudius DCass, Lx 11 § 3 he conceived and carried out an achievement worthy of the enterprise (φρονήματος) and greatness of Rome.' Ostia lay on the left bank of the left (i.e. the broader southern) arm of the Tiber. Claudius dug a safer basin about two miles N. of Ostia communicating with the river by a new cut (afterwards enlarged by Trajan, fossa Traiana, now Fiumicino, the right arm). The port protected by two vast moles, right and left, with a breakwater surmounted by a lighthouse between them, was known as portus Romanus or portus Augusti (Apul. met. xi 26. coins of Nero in Eckhel vi 276. DCass. LXXV 16 § 5. cf. LX 11). The harbour and river's mouth being choked with sand, there was in Latium no safe port for the cornfleets; the magazines were at Puteoli (acts 28 13. Sen. ep. 77 § 1). Caesar (Suet. Claud. 20. Plut. 58 § 3) projected a new channel for the Tiber to Anxur, and docks at Ostia. Strabo 231 232 calls Ostia 'a city without a port, on account of the alluvial deposits continually brought down by the Tiber, which compelled the larger vessels to ride at anchor in the open roadstead at great risk, while their cargoes were unloaded into barges, by which they were carried up the river to Rome. Other vessels were themselves towed up the Tiber, after they had been lightened by discharging a part of their cargoes.' cf. DH. III 44. Suet. Claud. 20 portum Ostiae exstruxit circumducto dextra sinistraque bracchio et ad introitum profundo iam sale mole obiecta; quam quo stabilius fundaret, navem ante demersit, qua magnus obeliscus ex Aegypto fuerat advectus, congestisque pilis superposuit altissimam turrim in exemplum Alexandrini phari, ut ad nocturnos ignes cursum navigia dirigerent. DCass. IX 11 a new harbour was necessary because of the dependence of Rome on foreign corn for support, and the danger of entering Ostia in winter; Claudius undeterred by his engineers' estimates of the cost, dug out a large basin, faced it with masonry and let in the sea; again in the sea itself γ ώματα έκατέρωθεν αὐτοῦ μέγαλα γώσας, θάλασσαν ένταῦθα πολλήν περιέβαλε και νησον έπ' αὐτή πύργον τε έπ' έκείνη φρυκτωρίαν έχοντα κατεστήσατο. ib. 31 § 4 Cl. goes to Ostia προς επίσκεψων σίτου. Suet. 25 he established corps of firemen at Ostia and Puteoli. cf. Plin. 1x § 14. XVI § 202 the vessel in which Caligula brought the obelisk from Egypt stretched nearly the whole length of the harbour of Ostia on the left: for there it was sunk in the reign of Claudius cum tribus molibus turrium altitudine in ea exaedificatis ob id ex Puteolano pulvere advectisque. XXXVI § 70 the towers were built on it at Puteoli, it was then towed to Ostia and sunk. ib. § 125. Henzen inscr. 5098. Prudent. perist. 11 48. Coins of Nero bear Aug. Port. were those magazines of corn, by seizing which Alaric (A.D. 409) compelled Rome to surrender (Gibbon, c. 31 n. 86 seq. Tillemont Honore art. 36). Philostorg, XII 3 'he seizes Portus, the chief naval station of Rome, encircled by three harbours and extending to the compass of a great city: here all the public corn was stored.' Gifford 'My curiosity led me also to Ostia (1789) and I walked between the piers, now covered with grass. The land has gained considerably on the west as well as the east coast of Italy; the bottom of the old harbour, on which we now walk, is therefore much raised: yet the arms are still so high above it, as to intercept the view of the adjoining country. The extremities of the old arms towards the sea must have fallen in; for, in their present state, they are but short, and a sandy coast stretches out far beyond them.' Merivale ch. 49. E. H. Hertzberg from this line infers that the harbour and moles spoken of are those of Baiae, joined with the Lucrine lagoon and Avernian lake by Augustus, to form the portus Iulius (Strab. 245. Suet. Aug. 16. DCass. xLvIII 50. Plin. xxxvi § 125 mare Tyrrhenum a Lucrino molibus seclusum. Aen. IX 707-9. Hor. a. p. 63-65. Prop. IV = 18 1. cf. Vell. II 79 § 2). But the distance of Baiae from Alba (the sublimis apex of 72), the lighthouse, and the short lived fame of the portus Iulius (see Bunbury dict. geogr. Lucrinus) confirm the traditional interpretation. The interiora stagna are Trajan's inner basin.

93—130 Do not set down my zeal as counterfeit, Corvinus. Catullus, for whose safety I rear three altars, has three heirs. On so barren a friend a sickly hen, even a quail, would be a bait wasted. With your Gallitta and your Pacius, your childless rich, it is another matter. Let them but begin to feel the heat, their whole porch is lined with votive tablets; men come forward to vow a hecatomb,—aye, of elephants, if they were not Caesar's drove, from the days of Hannibal and of Pyrrhus reserved to uses of state or war; so it is no fault of Hister's, if the 'ivory' is not led to the altars for Gallitta's health.—Another will offer his goodliest, his bondmen and bondwomen, even his own daughter in her prime, though no Diana will, as in the play, ranson his Iphigenia by a hind. My countryman for ever, say I: what is the Greek fleet of a thousand sail to a will? For if Pacius recover, entangled in the angler's weel, he may in a line make Pacuvius universal heir; no bad investment, you see, a daughter slain. Long live Pacuvius, even to Nestor's years; let him pile up plunder like Nero's, gold on gold, mountains high; and loving none, let him by none be loved.

NOSTEIS DUCIDUS REGIQUE MOLOSSO Plin. VIII § 16 the Romans first met with elephants in the war with Pyrrhus in Lucania B.C. 281, whence (from Plautus and Naevius to Claudianus Mamertus cent. 5 after Chr.) they were called Lucae boves Lucanian oxen (cf. Varro l. l. VII § 39. Luca. V 1302 Munro). M. Curius Dentatus exhibited some at his triumph B.c. 275 (Sen. brev. vit. 13 § 3. Eutr. n 14=8). More than a hundred were led in triumph by L. Caecilius Metellus B.c. 250 (Plin. VII § 139. VIII § 16. XVIII § 17. Sen. ib. § 8. Oros. IV 9). The Romans first employed them in battle in the war against Philip B.C. 200 (Liv. xxx 36 § 4). B.c. 190 in the battle of Magnesia L. Cornelius Scipio could oppose 16 African elephants to 54 Indian elephants of Antiochus (Liv. xxvii 39 § 13). The elephants in the campaign of Q. Marcius Philippus against king Perses B.c. 190, took fright on a march (ib. XLIV 5 § 2). They did good service at Vindalium B.C. 121, when Cn. Domitius Ahenobarbus defeated the Allobroges (Oros. v 13). A team was first yoked in Rome to the car of Pompeius in his African triumph B.c. 81 (Plin. viii § 4). In Caesar's Gallic triumph B.c. 46 elephants bearing torches were led (Suet. 37). In his African campaign B.c. 46 the soldiers of the fifth legion demanded to be led against the elephants in L. Scipio's army, which had at first caused great alarm: from their success in the battle that legion afterwards bore the figure of an elephant on their standards (App. b. c. 11 96. cf. Hirt. bell, Afric, 81-84). In the imperial times they were employed chiefly to draw the emperor's chariot in triumphs and processions Friedländer 113 372-5. 524 525. A 'consolatio' (παραμυθητικός cf. Sen. cons. ad Polyb. ad Helv. ad Marc. Plut. cons. ad Apollon. ad uxor. a beautiful tribute to his daughter's memory) addressed to Calvinus, who had been cheated of ten sestertia.

GUILT meets its due punishment, if not from corrupt judges, yet from the conscience of the sinner and the reprobation of honest men (1-6). But there are other considerations, Calvinus, which should mollify your wrath. True, the friend whom you trusted has defrauded you; but your fortune can well support so trifling a loss. Look about you, and see how rife-such crimes are. In the golden days of Saturn's rule falsehood was unknown, but now it is honesty that is the prodigy (7-85). Never was perjury so universal: for, while many believe in no God, others hope for a long reprieve, if not a final pardon (86-119). To raise an outcry then, as though your case were hard and strange, is as unreasonable as to wonder at blue eyes in a German, the goftre among the Alps, dwarfs in the land of pygmies (120-173). Are you then to look for no redress? Philosophy will teach you that none but little minds delight in revenge: but, in any case, you may be well content to leave the delinquent to his own remorse and to that law by which crime breeds crime. If such be your desire, you may yet see him condemned to exile or to death (174-249).

cf. Quintil. decl. 314.

This satire was written in the year 127 A.D. 17 n. Its lofty Stoicism has made it a favorite with moralists; many of the lines are as vigorous as any in Iuv., but the effect is marred by verbosity. The aged poet forgets the caution: manum de tabula. Recitations had spoilt taste; the sense of proportion was lost; the whole was sacrificed to the parts. It is true, not only of Seneca, but of all silver age writers, that they look best in quotations.' The epigrams of Martial are the most perfect works of silver age art, because in them point is in place, and there is no temptation to digress. In 1575 Muretus spent at Rome three lectures on this satire vol. 11 or. 12 'et iucunda autem et utilis illius evolutio futura est. continet enim multas graves et utiles sextentias, optimis verbis et genere quodam dicendi salso festivo hilari et, ut ita dicam, vivido, quod huic poetae proprium ac perpetuum est, explicatas.' This is all: 'die hohen Lobsprüche,' of which Düntzer talks, do not exist. Verses 39—52, 64—70, 78—85, extracts from a common-place book on mythology and portents, remind one of Lucan's misplaced encyclopaedic learning e.g. on Thessalian witchcraft (vr 630—829), on Antaeus (vr 590—655), portents (v 540—556), the battle of the winds (v 598—612). of. Stat. Th. vr 88—117 with his prototype Aen. vr 180—182.

1—22 Sin stands condemned by the sinner: he may bribe the praetor's court, but he cannot silence the judge within. What says the world, Calvinus, to this breach of trust? Your estate can bear it; it will not sink you; 'tis a hackneyed, every day mishap, a 'stale trick of chance.' Play the man then, and stifle your sobs. Scorn to wince at a trifling wound. What, born under Fonteius, with sixty years behind your back, and yet startled and fuming at perjury and fraud? Wisdom, by her heavenly maxims, enables men to master fortune. Even experience, that mistress of fools, might have enured your shoulders to the yoke.

23—37 No day too sacred to discover thieves, treachery, embezzlement, gain gotten by the dagger or the bowl. Good men are scarce, scarce as gates of Thebes or mouths of Nile. 'Tis Rome's ninth century, sunk below the iron age; Nature's self, baffled, has no metal to express the baseness of the times. We cry to men and gods for mercy, with a din deafening as the applause sold to Faesidius for a dole. Dotard, know you not the charms of a neighbour's gold? know you not how the world flouts your innocence, who bid any man eschew perjury for fear of some avenger watching in temples and blood-stained altars?

38-59 In such honest sort lived the first-born of earth before luppiter had driven Saturn, resigning his crown for a sickle, to fly for his life, while Iuno was a girl and Iuppiter still lived in the nursery of Ida's caves, when as yet were no feasts in heaven, no Ganymedes or Hebe to fill the cups, no Vulcan when the nectar is racked off scouring his arms dingy from the smithy of Lipara. Each god dined apart, and the crowd of gods was less. The stars satisfied with few divinities weighed but slightly on poor Atlas. Not as yet had the gloomy realm of the deep been by partition-treaty made over to one brother; grim Pluto as yet had no Sicilian wife: Ixion's wheel was not, nor Furies, nor stone of Sisyphus, nor vulture preying on Tityus; the ghosts made merry, for they owned no king or queen of hell. Dishonesty was a portent in that age, when it was counted a deadly sin not to rise before your elders, though you might boast more strawberries or larger hoards of acorns. Such reverence was accorded to four years' precedence. 'And children, in the springing down, revered | the sacred promise of a hoary beard.' So easy is it to slight heaven's witness, if no mortal eye is upon See, with what a set look and bold tone he denies the trust. Sol's beams he swears and the bolts of Tarpeian Iove, by Mars' javelin, and the shafts of Cirra's seer, by Diana's arrows and quiver, by thy harpoon, Neptune sire of the Aegean; he throws in the bow of Hercules and Minerva's lance, the whole artillery stored in the arsenal of heaven. 86-119 Some make chance all in all, and believing in no ruler of the world, swear without a shudder by any altar you please. Another believes that there are gods, and yet forecasts thus with himself. my body let Isis deal as she will, and with angry rattle strike blindness upon my eyes, if only even sightless I may clutch the foresworn coin. 'Tis worth while to buy wealth by consumption, rotten sores and a crippled thigh. Let Ladas, if not stark-mad, (needing hellebore of Anticyra or prescriptions of Archigenes) not hesitate in his need to pray for the rich man's gout: for what is he the better for the fame of fleetness and the hunger-starved branch of Olympia's olive-wreath? Can he feast on praise? The wrath of the gods may be heavy, it is assuredly tardy: if they are concerned to punish all the guilty, when will my turn come round? Besides I may perchance, as some do, appease their wrath; if one man's crimes bring him to a cross, another's win a crown.' Thus the perjurer steels his heart against fear, nay drags you to the temple to hear his oaths: acting a farce all the time, like the runaway buffoon in Catullus. You shout like Stentor or Mars in Homer: 'Iuppiter, dost thou hear and yet not move the lip, when thou should'st speak even though of stone or brass? Else why do we drop incense and offer heifer's liver and hog's caul on thy altar? For aught I see, choice there is none

sloth: 'you are so sound asleep from an opiate that you have no ear for perjuries, no eye for injustice. When you were young, your lightnings were never at rest. Now you let things take their own course, and no one, except from habit, makes the smallest offering to you. Soon you will go the way of Kronos; already men plunder your temple, and you don't even dare to wake the dogs or rouse the neighbours. You have already outslept Epimenides. Take the bellows and kindle a thunderbolt, or borrow fire from Oeta: else we may believe the Cretan story of your tomb.' Zeus c. 9 confesses that owing to pressure of business, the increase of perjury, robbery and sacrilege, he has not had time lately to look at Attica; and the bawling of the philosophers drowns all sounds of prayer; one's only chance, if one would not be worried to death, is to stop one's ear and sit still.

Borghesi (oeuvres v 534) inferring from this verse that this Modenese orator had the ius imaginum, identifies him with L. Possibly the statue of Vagellius (cf. vii 125—8) was mutilated or otherwise maltreated (cf. i 129—131). Paus. vi 11 §§ 5—9 an enemy of Theagenes after his death flogged his statue; the statue falls and kills its assailant; his children prosecute the statue for murder; it is drowned according to Drako's law; the island becomes barren, and the Delphian oracle enjoins the recal of Th. The statue is fished up and sacrifices offered to the new god. Paus. affirms that Th. wrought many miracles of healing both among Greeks and barbarians. Suct. Cal. 5 Torrent. and Cas. Lucian Iupp. trag. 20 Momos: 'When men hear rhapsodists tell of our loves and wounds and chains and bondage and quarrels, must they not despise us? we ought to count ourselves lucky that some still offer sacrifices to us. 21 Tell me, Zeus, do you ever give yourself any concern to reward the good and chastise the evil? But for Theseus and Herakles the greatest monsters would have lived secure. 22 Truth to tell, our only care is for the steam of burntofferings. No wonder that our advocates are put to silence by an Epikuros or a Damis.' 24 Poseidon: 'My business lies in the sea, in saving voyagers and stilling winds; still I cannot help thinking now and then that Damis ought to be put out of the way, by a thunderbolt say.' 25 Zeus: 'Are you jesting, Poseidon, or do you forget that the deaths of men—by lightning, by sword, by fever or consumption—are not ordered by us, but by the Fates? Else, if it had rested with me, do you think that I should have allowed τους ιεροσύλους πρώην απελθείν ακεραυνώτους έκ Πίσης δύο μου των πλοκάμων αποκείραντας έξ μνῶς ἐκάτερον ἔλκοντα; or would you yourself have spared the fisherman who stole your trident in Geraestos?' 120-142 Hear plain words of comfort, drawn from no wisdom of the schools. Your pulse may be trusted even to an apprentice: only for dangerous cases must leading physicians be called in. If the wrong done to you stands alone in its enormity, then beat your breast, if you will, and smite your forehead: it is the way of the world: money departed is bewailed with genuine tears. But if in every assize men forswear bonds, under their own hand and seal, why should you claim exemption from the general lot, 'as son to a white hen, poor we the dregs | and baser chickens of unhappy eggs?'

The hen had a large brood, from which the villa where it fell was called ad Gallinas: the laurel-branch was planted and afterwards supplied the emperors with triumphal crowns. It is more simple to take white as the emblem of good fortune. 'You were born with a silver spoon in your mouth.

143-173 Your grievance is slight, when compared with the charges that occupy our courts from dawn to sunset: hired bandits, arson, sacrilege, poison, parricide: a single house is a miniature of the world; attend on our city prefect but for a few days, and then dare to complain of your lot. None stare at goitre in the Alps, or hanging breasts, larger than the sturdy suckling, in Merce, watchet eyes and flaxen hair in a German. Seen in Rome, a battle of dwarfs and cranes would make you split with laughter; in the land of pygmies, where one foot is the standard height, no one smiles at the spectacle.

192-235 How can they be said to have escaped, whom conscience scourges? 'Tis a punishment more cruel than any devised by Caedicius or Bhadamanthus, to be haunted night and day by an accuser in one's own breast. The Pythian priestess warned the Spartan Glaukos, who had asked, whether or no he should break trust and maintain the cheat by perjury, that he would not escape vengeance. So he returned the deposit; but as his honesty was due to fear, not to principle, he and all his house were swept away. Such is the retribution due to the mere intention of sinning; for he who designs a sin, is guilty of the act. What if he have executed it? he is in constant terror; the daintiest wine cannot drown his care. If he fall into a doze, the god whose altar he has violated, the man whom he has wronged, rise before him in his dreams and drive him to confess. Every flash of lightning seems to such men aimed point-blank at them; every attack of disease a judgement on their sins. They dare not bring an offering in their stead; for what hope is there for the guilty? What victim but is worthier to live? 192 FEMINA x 321 n. epist. Corneliae matris

If our sons, Fuscinus, grow in vice as they grow in years, the fault is too often to be charged on a father's example (1—106). True as this is universally, it is most true of avarice; this vice alone is inculcated as a virtue: yet, if parents would but suffer things to take their course, this also would soon spring up of itself, and alarm by its growth those who now blindly and suicidally foster it (107-331).

1—85 Children learn vice from their parents: the children of the gambler (4—5) the epicure (7—14) the cruel master (15—24) or the false wife (25—30) will with rare exceptions (31—37) follow in their parents' steps. If nothing else can deter men from vice, yet reverence for the young should (38—49): if a son errs, his father corrects his fault; yet with what face can he do so, while he himself is worse of the two (48—58)? Our houses are swept and put in trim when a guest is looked for; we are content that our sons see them stained with vice (59—69). All depends on early training; the stork, vulture, eagle, when full fledged, seek no other prey than such as they first fed on in the nest (70—85).

Caelicolarum, de quibus cod. Theodos. xvi 8 § 19 consulendus." The Caelicolse were a Jewish sect, first spoken of (as perverting Christians to Judaism) in a law of Honorius A.D. 409 cod. Just. 1 9 5 12. cf. cod. Theod. xvi 5 43. Schröckh KG. vii 442. Bernays (see on 101) p. 569 n. quotes cod. Bezae acts 13 50. 17 4, where σεβόμενοι is rendered caelicolae (cf. Bönsch Itala und Vulg. 306); adding: in post-biblical Jewish writings the name of God, except in prayers, is scrupulously avoided. One of the commonest substitutes is 'heaven' (John 3 27); so 'the kingdom of heaven' = 'the kingdom of God.' The God-fearing proselyte, the jere adonai of the bible, in post-biblical language becomes heaven-fearing jeré schamajim. One of the oldest tracts of the Talmud mechilta on exod. 22 20 explaining Is. 44 5 'another shall use the name of Jacob,' says 'those are they that fear heaven.' Midrasch on deut. (Debarim Babba c. 2=Salkut ps. 47 10) tells how a Roman senator 'fearing heaven,' averted a persecution of the Jews by the sacrifice of his life. Another ex. in Jellinek Bet hidramasch 5 p. xLvi. This usage led Iuv. and others to attribute to the Jews the worship of heaven; nubes is a satiric touch, to throw into relief the nebulous nature of such a God of heaven as opposed to the sharply defined outlines of the gods of Greece and Rome (cf. Aristoph. nub. 365-425). The term proves that Iuv. does not intend to charge The Jews with an idolatrous worship of heaven ; such a calumny was no longer possible, even for the most malicious, as is shewn by Tacitus' acknowledgement of the purity of the Jewish conception of God. Göser adds 'the god of heaven' Ezra 1 2. 7 12 21 cet. also Matt. 21 25. Strabo p. 732 the Persians set up no images and altars, but sacrifice in a high place τὸν οὐρανὸν ἡγούμενοι Δία. Arr. anab. 107—255 to other vices the young are prone of themselves; to avarice their fathers must train them (107—125): accordingly they stint themselves and their household and, the love of money growing with their wealth, by fair means or foul possess themselves of their neighbours' estate (126—155): for now a single proprietor will own a larger tract than Rome did under the kings; it is this haste to be rich which causes crime (156—178): the Marsian father of old warned his sons against luxury; now-a-days a father urges his sons to make money by any the meanest arts (179—208): what wonder then if the son goes a step further, and seeks his fortune by perjury and murder? nay, to satisfy that love of gain which he has inherited from his father, attempts that father's life? (209—255).

THE Egyptians, who would deem it sacrilege to taste an onion or a leek, have in our enlightened times been guilty of barbarity which equals that of the monsters of fable (1—82). A festival at Ombi was lately interrupted by the Tentyrites: one of whom, after his party had been put to flight, was overtaken, torn in pieces and devoured (33—92). Other nations are said to have fed on the flesh of man, but only when driven to it by famine: rage and hate move the Egyptians to crimes which others only commit in the madness of despair (93—131). Man is made for society and sympathy; yet man has been known to do what brute beasts will not do, to prey upon his own kind (131—174).

The poet seems to have been led to choose this subject partly by the hatred and contempt which Romans, after the battle of Actium, entertained for the Egyptians (cf. 1 26. 180. rv 24. Aen. viii 685—713. Hoc. 1 37. epod. 9. Prop. iv=iii 11 29—58. Ov. m. xv 826—8. Luc. viii 541—550. x 58—80. anth. lat. 462 R), and partly by his own observation of their manners (45 quantum ipse notavi).

Plin. XXXII § 41 iam vero et Harpocraten statuasque Aegyptiorum numinum in digitis viri quoque portare incipiunt.

Luc. x 17, 175—191 represents curiosity as a main motive for visiting Egypt (177—8 vulgique edissere mores | et ritus for masque deum).

The satire was rejected by G. I. Voss inst. poet. III 97 and D. Heins de sat. rom. I 62. C. Kempf obss. Berl. 1843. Heinrich, who speaks doubtfully II 22, acknowledges (498) that in detail, in the vividness of the painting, in wit and expression, it has entirely the character of Iuv. Kempf justly censures the redundance of 24—5. 33—4. 40. 47—8. 55. 95. 101. 129—30. 134—5, 151—2; and the menagery in 159—164; but this redundance appears everywhere in Iuv.

1—32 the Egyptians regard it as a sin to eat an onion or a leek, but feed without abhorrence on human flesh: of all marvellous stories told by Ulixes to the Phaeacians none are so strange as those of Cyclopes and Laestrygones, but deeds of horror not less atrocious have been witnessed in Egypt, not in a fabulous antiquity, but in our own civilised days.

We found the creature lying on the brink. The priests went up to it, and some opened its mouth, while one put in the cake, then the meat, and then poured in the μελίκρατον. The crocodile then plunged into the lake and hastened to the other side. When another visitor came, likewise bearing an offering, the priests ran round and came up to it and again in like manner presented the gifts. Plut. 5 DIMIDIO MAGICAE RESONANT UBI MEMNONE CHORDAE Memnon in the Aethiopis of Arctinus, one of the poems which formed the epic cycle, was described as son of Aurora and Tithonus, who was slain by Achilles before Troy, and afterwards received the gift of immortality. By the Alexandrine writers this legend was connected with the statue of the Egyptian king Amunoph III. Pausan, 1 42 § 2 (ἀλλὰ γάρ οὐ Μέμνονα οἱ Θηβαῖοι λέγουσι, Φαμένωφα δὲ εἶναι τῶν ἔγχώριων, οὖ τοῦτο τὸ ἄγαλμα ἦν. cf. CIG 4727 ἔκλυον αὐδήσαντος έγὼ 'πὸ λίθω Βάλβιλλα | φώνας τας θείας Μέμνονος ή Φαμένωθ. ib. 4731). The first writer who speaks of the musical sound is Strabo 816 who himself heard it at dawn, but does not call the statue Memnon's. He saw B.C. 24 two colossal statues, one erect, the other broken from its pedestal by an earthquake (possibly that recorded by Eus. a. u. c. 728 = B. c. 26 Thebae Aegypti usque ad solum dirutae); it was from the portion of the latter which remained on the base that the sound (ψόφος ώς αν πληγης οὐ μεγάλης) was believed to proceed. He was there with Aelius Gallus and speaks with great caution είτε δε από της Βάσεως είτε από τοῦ κολοσσοῦ εἴτ' ἐπίτηδες τῶν κύκλω καὶ περὶ τὴν βάσιν ίδρυμένων τινὸς ποιήσαντος τὸν ψόφον, ούκ έχω διισχυρίσασθαι. διά γάρ το άδηλον τής αίτίας παν μαλλον Επέργεται πιστεύειν ή το έκ των λίθων ουτω τεταγμένων έκπέμπεσθαι τον Axer. TENTYBA 2 n. 76. now Denderah (where are considerable ruins of the old city), the capital of the nomos Tentyrites (Plin. v $ 49) in Upper Egypt on the left bank of the Nile. As Ombi and Tentyra were more than 100 miles distant, separated by five nomes and several important cities, they were not finitimi or vicini (36). Hence Pauw rech. sur les Egypt, 11 160 and others (e.g. Parthey on Plut. Is, et Os. 270) read here Coptos (an unknown pl.) for Ombos. Iuv. is guilty of a gross error in geography, but has otherwise assigned the battle to the most likely combatants. Ael. n. a. x 21 some Egyptians, as the Ombites, reverence crocodiles; regarding them with the same admiration as we do the gods of Olympus. If their children are carried off by them. they often rejoice above measure, and go in solemn procession, οία δήπου τεκοῦσαι θεφ βοράν και δείπνον. But the Apollonopolites, a branch of the Tentyrites, take the crocodiles in nets, hang them from trees and flog them, then cut them up and eat them. With the Ombites they are even familiar, and such as are fed in the ponds which they have made, come at call. They throw to them the heads of the creatures sacrificed (for this part they will not eat themselves), and the crocodiles leap about them. The Apollonopolites however hate the crocodile. ib. 24 (after describing the method of killing the crocodile in Tentyra): these people are so active in hunting them, ώς τον έκειθι ποταμόν είρήνην άγειν αὐτῶν βαθυτάτην. Here then they swim without fear and disport themselves in swimming: but amongst the Ombites or Coptites or Arsenoites it is not easy even to bathe the feet, nor to draw water: nay you may not even freely and without precaution walk along the river's banks. The Tentyrites reverence hawks: the inhabitants of Coptos then, intending to vex them as enemies of crocodiles, often crucify hawks. Sext. Emp. Pyrrh. 1 § 83 the Tentyrites are not hurt πρὸς ἄνω κάτω (sic) τῶν κροκοδείλων. J. Duemichen Bauurkunde der Tempelanlagen von Dendera Leipz. 1865. 4to.

Plin. viii §§ 92 93 describes the mode of capture employed by the Tentyritae, adding that they exerted a peculiar fascinating power upon the crocodile cf. xxviii § 31. DS. i 35 § 6. Strabo 814—5 at Tentyra the crocodile is regarded as the most hateful of beasts; for while the other Egyptians, though aware of the creature's vice and how destructive it is to mankind, still worship and spare it, these track them out in every way and extirpate them. They seem to have an antipathy to the crocodiles, so as to suffer no harm from them, so as to dive under them and cross them, which no others dare do. When crocodiles were brought to Rome for exhibition, Tentyrites accompanied them. A reservoir was made with a stage at one side, on which the creatures might bask, and it was the Tentyrites who drew them out in a net, going into the water to them, and returning them into Sen. n. q. 93-131 The Vascones too once fed on human flesh, but they could plead necessity: nothing short of such pitiable (97) extremity can palliate such guilt: again, the Vascones were an untaught tribe; Egypt in common with the rest of the world (110) has now some culture, and yet is more cruel than Diana Taurica, for her human victims are not eaten after death. These Egyptians were in no extremity, and yet (122) their crime was as heinous, as could be occasioned even by the famine which would ensue if the Nile should withhold its waters; in them, though an effeminate race (126), the impulses of passion are no less desperate, than those of famine in others.

He adds, that this woman had a young son about the age of her God, whose play-fellow he was; and that, whiles for tenderness of body the Godcrocodile seem'd tame, all was well: but that when strength came to him, his nature came to him, and [though he had spoil'd his own sport] he eat up his play-fellow: that the mother notwithstanding, though indeed wretched, rejoiced at the death of her child, as most happy, being so honoured as to be made the sacrifice of her house-God.'

The opinions of modern critics are collected by Ruperti and Heinrich; add, in favour of the genuineness of the satire, K. F. Hermann, Düntzer, W. E. Weber, O. Jahn. That the work is imperfect is evident: for we have no complete list of the communia commoda, which were but the beginning of the proposed theme (7): the instances of special good fortune, alluded to in verses 1-6, are not touched upon. The objections which have been taken to the language are frivolous in themselves, and easily outweighed by the excellence of 4 seq. 9 seq. 24-34 cet. F. Bücheler (Rhein. Mus. xxix 1874 636. cf. Ribbeck der echte . . Juvenal 175 seq.) explains the abrupt termination of the fragment. Afterwards, by a fiction like that of the ius trium liberorum, civilians were by special grace admitted to share the privilege dig. xxxvii 6 1 § 15 quasi castrense peculium. inst. II 1 § 6 Schrader. cod. Iust. xii 30=31 a defence of the extended privilege.

52 53 Parta labore militiae dig.

XLIX 17 castrense peculium est, quod a parentibus vel cognatis in militia agenti donatum est vel quod ipse filius familias in militia adquisiit, quod, nisi militaret, adquisiturus non fuisset. nam quod erat et sine militia adquisiturus, id peculium eius castrense non est.

Tac. h. ii 89 militum phalerae torquesque splendebant. Capitolin. Maximin. 2 § 4. 3 § 5.

PHALEBIS e before r as in camera, Camerina (cf. Roby 1 73 § 230 3). In 1858 phalerae were discovered at Lauersfort near Crefeld (O. Jahn die Lauersforter Phalerae. Bonn 1860 4to. A. Rein de phaleris in annali dell' inst. 1860 161—204). They are bosses of thin bronze, silver or gold, chased in relief, filled in with pitch, and worn as medals are now, on the breast, fastened to a belt by a back-piece of copper. On some stones soldiers appear wearing 9 phalerae on a network of thongs across the breast. In inscr. torquibus armillis phaleris donatus is common (Orelli and CIL ind. under 'officia militaria' s.v. donis, e.g. CIL v 7495 L. Coelius Q. f. miles leg. viii. signifer ob virtutes palaris torquibus armillis don[atus]. Marquardt Staatsverw. Il 556—7. Becker-Marquardt III (2) 440—1. v (2) 267—8. Rich companion. Forc.). Sil. xv 255 Dr.

TORQUIBUS WORN OVER the breast; borrowed from the Gauls (S. Birch on the torc of the Celts in archæol. journ. 11 368—380. III 27—38). We find ala bis torquata Orelli inscr. 516. Marquardt 1. c. Rich, Capitolin. Maximin. 2 § 4. 3 § 5. Tac. ann. 11 9. III 21.

BOILEAU l'art poëtique II 155-165

Juvénal, élevé dans les cris de l'école, poussa jusqu'à l'excès sa mordante hyperbole. ses ouvrages, tout pleins d'affreuses vérités, étincellent pourtant de sublimes beautés: soit que sur un écrit arrivé de Caprée il brise de Séjan la statue adorée; soit qu'il fasse au conseil courir les sénateurs, d'un tyran soupçonneux pâles adulateurs; ou que, poussant à bout la luxure latine, aux portefaix de Rome il vende Messaline. ses écrits pleins de feu partout brillent aux yeux.

513—6 cites a law of Augustus (DCass, il 17 § 2 B.C. 30) that no Egyptan should be a senator, first broken through in the time of Caracalla (ib. § 3. lxxvi 5 § 5 A. D. 208 where Aelius Coeranus is named as the first Egyptian senator). The schol, on iv 1 'factus est magister equitum Neronis.'
Now Pomponius dig. 1 2 2 8 19 says of the magistri equitum quod afficium fere tale eral, quale hodie praefectorum praetorio.
dig. 11 8 1 ad similitudinem magistrorum equitum praefecti praetorio a principibus electi sunt. Io. Lydus i 14 says the Caesars gave to the magister equitum the name prae-fectus praetorio (ib. ii 6 he notes the slight change from iππορχος to ἐπαρχος). Now Iuv. iv 31 calls Crispinus purpureus scurra palati and Lydus (ii 13) says that one of the badges of the praefecti praetorio one of the badges of the praefecti praetorio was a μανόνη or chlamys of purple. Iuv. iv 32 further calls him princeps equitum (see n. there. Hdn. v 7 § 3 Elagabalus placed an actor over the equestrian order. DCass. lxix 4 § 1 gives the name Eutychianus Κωμάζων and the office as praefectus praetorio. cf. Lamprid. Heliog. 12. Fronto also ep. ad Ant. Pium 3 p. 165 Naber calls Marcius Turbo Hadrian's praef praet greater ordinits remarking. pract. pract. educatris ordinis primarius. Now there were two pracfecti practorio (DCass. lxvii 15 § 2), one of whom (Iuv. iv (DCass. lxvii 15 $ 2), one of whom (luv. iv 111—2 n.) was Cornelius Fuscus. The other will be Crispinus. This explains Mart. vii 99, viii 48 1 where the Tyria abolla (cf. 2 togam) is military uniform. Again, the praefecti practorio appointed soldiers to their field of labour; if Crispinus sent luv. to Egypt, the poet's harred of him is explained, as a construct 121.
